

PLAN TO CONSTRUCT TEMPORARY BRIDGE ACROSS THE RIVER

GENERAL MANAGER SPARKS OF INTERURBAN ROAD IN CON-FERENCE WITH CITY
OFFICIALS.

DIVER BEGINS WORK

Seeks Safes Which Went Down in the River—Debris Causes Considerable Trouble in Removing.

Plans to construct a temporary bridge across Rock river at Milwaukee street were taken up this morning by William Sparks, general manager of the Rockford and Interurban company, and Mayor Fathens and members of the council. Mr. Sparks made an inspection of the bridge and pronounced it unsafe to run cars over.

The center of the structure, for a distance of a hundred feet, is practically all burned out and needs instant attention to prevent further accidents. Chief Engineer Hubbard of the Rockford and Interurban company was in the city this morning to make a more thorough inspection. Mr. Sparks made a proposition to the mayor that he would construct a temporary bridge suitable for a single driveway and one foot-wide and the car tracks and will submit his proposition in writing after his engineer makes his report this afternoon.

The proposed temporary structure would be north of the present car tracks, the south side of the bridge being entirely wrecked. As it would take nearly a year to construct a new bridge, after one is ordered, the proposed structure would be in use for months to come.

The work of clearing away the wreckage of the ruined buildings is progressing slowly and much of the debris floats down the river, even after it passes the Court street bridge, to lodge against the street railway's Jackson street structure. It will be some days before it is entirely removed at the rate the work is now progressing.

Policemen are stationed on the bridge structure to keep pedestrians moving, and men for the two telephone companies and the Gas company are hard at work repairing all damage done by the fire.

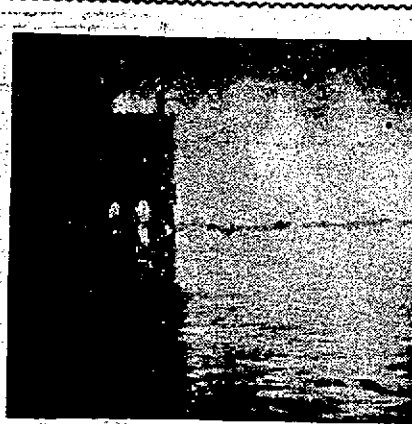

Charles Gunderson, the diver who has been employed in building of the new railroad bridge, arrived this morning with his helper and is ready to start the work of rescuing the safes and removing the debris. A platform was constructed across the ruins of the buildings, and plans were laid for the work. Yesterday the city appointed J. P. Cullen to superintend the work of removing the debris of the fire and four men were detailed to Court street bridge where a platform had been constructed for the men to work on.

Great portions of the burned buildings were lodged against the piles supporting the buildings occupied by the Bower City Implement Company. Holes have been chopped in the floor for the men to push the logs down stream and prevent them from catching against the piles under the buildings.

When Mr. Gunderson looked over the ruins he stated that all lost safes and valuable papers could be easily recovered if the current had not swept them down the stream. This morning five of the bridge workers came down to work with the diver and had a platform extending out over the burned foundation and from here the diver will start his search for the property.

This morning large quantities of damaged stock were taken out of the one story building of Miller and Schubert's cigar store. The safe was discovered to be two feet above water and was saved from falling into the river on account of a large amount of coal that was put in just previous to the fire and upon which the safe had lodged. The fire was successfully checked at this point and parts of the western wall are undamaged. Large quantities of stock were recovered this morning but nearly all of it was badly damaged. Some of the cigars were untouched.

At the Thometz saloon great damage was done to the interior of the building. The rear of the store is in bad condition. Mr. Thometz had about twenty-five hundred dollars worth of stock in the basement of the store which is under a foot of water. Mr. Brown, of the Brown Brothers shoe store, recovered some of his books this morning which he found floating around among the ruins. His safe is estimated to be about in the center of the debris and will be the first one that Mr. Gunderson will try to recover. Besides containing valuable books and papers it also had Monday's currency.

The safe of Carpenter & Carpenter is a very large one and contains very valuable papers. It is expected to give the most trouble in removing. Besides weighing over a ton it is probably situated in the heart of the ruins and under tons of brick and lumber.

Work of repairing the telephone lines was pushed with all possible speed last night and today. Great care has to be taken in splicing the broken parts. Every wire has a number and every one has to be tested at each end of the bridge so as to insure correct connections. Neither company had complete cables across the structure this morning and most of the work consisted of building a platform for the workmen. The Wisconsin Telephone company has two cables being constructed and will contain over sixteen hundred wires. The Rock County company has four started and contain twelve hundred wires. The work of removing the effects of the fire is very painstaking and slow and it is estimated that it will be at least three days before connections will be made to all parts of the city.

Meanwhile the merchants are badly crippled, as all the grocers are forced to send order boys around to parts of the city that are cut off. The disconnection of the phones, especially the long distance, has worked hardships upon the bakers as all orders have to be mailed in and cause a costly delay.

Because of last night's heavy storm the river rose nearly an inch but at noon it registered the same as yesterday morning. The water below the dam to Milwaukee street bridge still remains at about thirteen inches above the normal and will stay at this mark until a good channel is provided for. The work of removing the ruins will be handicapped by the fact that the ruined parts are on a direct line with the piles at the Court street bridge and this necessitates having men to keep the floating debris from lodging there.

Dynamite has been spoken of as the most effective means of ridding the river of the jam as it would not only loosen the mass but would break it up into smaller parts and cause little trouble in sending it down the river.

Gunderson made his first trip beneath the water, in a hole that the current had formed. In the center of the ruins a platform had been built for the air pump and his help-mates. It was here that the location of the Brown Bros' safe is most probable.

On coming up, Mr. Gunderson said that the water was at least eighteen feet deep and that the current was dangerously swift. At the bottom of the river was a large stone and portions of the foundation which makes his work extremely dangerous. Not only this has he to contend with, but several times he was unable to go on with his work until he had extracted himself from the wires that hemmed him in. He is unable to see anything and has to rely upon the sense of touch in his work.

On his first trip down he made more of an exploration trip than for the purpose of finding the resting place of the safe. After working in and around the drifts of debris he discovered what he believed to be the Brown Bros' safe, but as it was completely covered he was not sure.

Thousands of people were out to view the wreck and the diver at his work. Even the roofs of the surrounding buildings were covered and a large part of the crowd were sight-seers from other cities.

Gunderson succeeded in drawing up the Brown Bros' safe late this afternoon. This safe is supposed to contain two hundred dollars in currency and insurance papers and receipts. Mr. Gunderson said it would be impossible to go after other safes until the rubbish in the river was cleared away more. Mr. Burgett, who is in charge of the construction of the new Northwestern railroad bridge, superintended the work this afternoon.

AMERICAN WOMAN IS SUFFERING IN PRISON

Relatives Seek to Relieve Suffragette
Who is Confined in English Jail.

London, April 2.—A letter from Mrs. Emerson of Detroit, Mich., was today handed by Josiah Wadsworth, a liberal member of parliament to Reginald McKenna, the British home secretary. The letter demands permission for Mrs. Emerson's own physician to examine her daughter, Miss Zelia Emerson, the militant suffragette, who is said to be suffering from the foreboding feeling employed by the officials since she started her hunger strike in Holloway jail.

The United States embassy, according to Mrs. Emerson, has promised in the event of the failure of Secretary

McKenna to comply with her request to place the matter before the British foreign office. A letter from a prisoner confined in the next cell to Miss Emerson states that the release of the American woman within a few days is necessary in order to save her reason and perhaps her life. This letter also asserts that Miss Emerson, by giving her neighbor a portion of her food had started her hunger strike fourteen days before the prison doctors discovered it.

SLASH HIS SALARY; BACK TO WISCONSIN

Chief Clerk of Senate in Service for Twenty Years. Gets Peevish.
When Pay is Cut $2,000.

Washington, April 3.—When one's $3,000 job is suddenly slashed to $1,000 it is calculated to make the victim peevish. This at least was the view taken by A. D. Parkinson, principle clerk of the senate when he was told by members of the patronage committee that such a reduction had been made.

"Not for me," quipped Mr. Parkinson pulling down his roll-top desk and reaching for his hat. "Take your bloomin' job and jump off the dock with it." Whereupon Mr. Parkinson packed his goods and is now on his way back to Wisconsin which he left more than twenty years ago to come to Washington. He was a friend of Senator Vilas, and is a democrat.

GERMANY'S POSITION IN BALKAN AFFAIRS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, April 3.—Germany's position in Balkan affairs was outlined in detail by Gottlieb von Jagow, German foreign minister, in a speech before the judicial committee of the imperial parliament today. He referred to the situation at Scutari where the little kingdom of Montenegro is defying the powers. Germany, he said, is participating in the naval demonstration on the Montenegrin coast at the wish of Austria. The powers decision is final. He added that Montenegro shall not have Scutari.

Hert Von Jagow is endeavoring to obtain a settlement of the question of the future of the Turkish islands in the Aegean sea, which will not endanger Turkey's Asiatic possessions where Germany wishes to preserve existing condition.

None of the European nations has yet said brought up the question of the Dardanelles. In the Bulgarian-Rumanian controversy, Germany, he continued, is trying as far as possible to establish the Rumanians' claims.

EMELINE PANKHURST GETS PRISON TERM AFTER CONVICTION

Sentenced to Three Years of Penal Servitude on Conviction Of Charges.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, April 3.—Mrs. Emeline Pankhurst the leader of the militant suffragists was today found guilty and sentenced to three years' penal servitude at the Old Bailey Sessions on a charge of inciting persons to commit damage.

The trial lasted two days. The jury added to its verdict of guilty, strong recommendation for mercy and when the judge pronounced the heavy sentence of three years the crowd of women in the court room rose in angry protest.

As Mrs. Pankhurst stood up in the prisoners' enclosure her sympathizers cheered wildly, and then filed out of the court singing "March On" to the tune of the Marseillaise.

Mrs. Pankhurst's closing address to the jury lasted fifty minutes. She informed the court that she did not wish to call any witness. In her address she frequently wandered so far from the matter before the court the judge censured her.

Mrs. Pankhurst denied any malicious indictment. "Neither I nor the other militant suffragettes are wicked nor malicious," she said. Mrs. Pankhurst continued not tried by a jury peers and those trials are an example of what women are suffering in order to obtain their rights. Personally I have had to surrender a large part of my income in order to be free to participate in the suffrage movement.

Speaking with much feeling Mrs. Pankhurst fearfully criticized man-made laws and said that the divorce law alone was sufficient to justify a revolution by the women. In impassioned tones she declared:

"Whatever may be my sentence, I will not submit. From the very moment I leave the court I will refuse to eat. I will come out of the prison dead or alive at the earliest possible moment."

Justice Lush in summing up told the jury that Mrs. Pankhurst's speech was an admission that she had incited to the perpetration of illegal acts.

EAU CLAIRE FACES A FLOOD SITUATION

Hundreds of Acres of Lowlands Inundated and Five Hundred People Flee for Safety.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Eau Claire, April 3.—Hundreds of acres of lowlands are inundated today as a result of the continued rise of the Chippewa river, which has overflowed its banks in several places north of here. The most serious damage, according to reports, occurred at Cobban, twenty-eight miles north of here. Five hundred persons last night were forced to desert their homes and take refuge in the highlands. At an early hour today the water had reached the tops of houses, it was reported. Warning of the impending danger was given the inhabitants some time before the streets were flooded and all safely escaped. The river was forced over its banks by floating ice which gorged the dam. Several bridges have been weakened by the high waters.

Ice Gorges Broken. Chippewa Falls, April 3.—A terrific thunder storm last night broke up the ice gorges one mile up the Chippewa river from here, letting loose a roaring torrent of ice water and debris. Thousands of tons of ice 18 inches thick swirled and twisted down the stream carrying with it several log booms. Thus augmented the river roared down stream and practically ruined the Omaha railroad bridge. For two hours the raging waters swept through the city with such a commotion that the entire city was awakened.

Soe Yards Overflowed. The river rose five feet in thirty minutes, overflowed the Soe line yards and marooned fifty freight cars before the switch engine located there could get to them. There were five miles of big ice cakes backed up by the gorges and when it was suddenly let loose the noise was so great it could be heard for miles. Much farm land in inundated and the property loss is heavy.

Wisconsin River Rises. Wausau, April 3.—A flood is threatened here. Wisconsin river has reached the eight foot stage. Ten feet is the flood stage. The rise is caused by the heavy rains of Wednesday. Park Falls on the Rib river reports a rise of 2.75 inches in the river since Wednesday. All mill gates have been opened at Tomahawk.

RAIN AT EVANSVILLE

tucky Side.

Cairo, April 3.—Although rain and wind had been predicted for Cairo the sun rose again clear today and everything gave promise that another clear warm day could be utilized in further preparing against the possibility of a flood into the town. There was little change in the gauge today, the water standing about the same position it stood last night. The official reading was 56.5.

The low waters today acted in the same way as yesterday, there being no apparent rise in the early morning hours. The reason given by the local forecaster for this condition today is the fact that the small levees continue to give way both on the Missouri and Kentucky sides and it is believed that a great part of the country in each state is being flooded.

Soldiers in Readiness. Both soldiers and naval reserves held themselves in readiness for rescue work during the day. One of the first acts of the reserves being to return to Missouri with forty soldiers of the Missouri National Guard who were needed from a dangerous levee position near Bird Point last night. The soldiers were brought here and were reported to have been in a serious plight when rescued.

Caseville, Ky., was said to have suffered from the flood. It is near Brookport, Ill., where relief is expected to be sent today and if conditions are as reported it may be included.

Rains at Evansville.

Evansville, Ind., April 3.—Heavy rain this forenoon added to discomforts of flood sufferers in Evansville's water swept areas but the weather bureau said the rain was not sufficient to make any change in the height of the river. The bureau observed that the seven showed a stage of 47.75 feet flood. The crest is expected here this forenoon. Relief work by federal authorities continues. A tug boat well provisioned is in the Wabash bottoms today to aid the flood marooned farmers and will proceed on to Shawneetown to help people there.

Refugees in Misery. Dekoven, Ky., April 3.—Rain throughout this section began falling early today and will add greatly to the misery of 600 Shawneetown, Ill., refugees camped on the hillside behind their flooded town. The Ohio river is five miles wide and is running like a mill race over the night. The river rose five and a half inches overnight. All the lowlands are flooded. The Illinois Central railroad is out of commission here and there are no trains running out of Dekoven which is nearly opposite Shawneetown. take up flood.

Ohio Now Receding. Louisville, Ky., April 3.—With the waters of the Ohio receding here and no further damage expected save the possible collapse of buildings weakened by the flood Louisville was prepared today to give more attention to questions of sanitation and relief.

The city health department has intimated it would require that flooded homes be thoroughly cleaned and dried out before owners are permitted in again.

Lower river points today were busy with preventative and relief work in preparation for the crest of the flood now nearly upon them. Strengthening of the levees continued at Hickman. Paducah faces a critical situation with one to four feet deep in many streets and still rising rapidly.

Marooned on Levee. Cairo, Ill., April 3.—Thirty-six members of the Missouri national guard who were marooned on a section of the levee at Blue Point, Missouri, last night were taken off early today by the tender of the Illinois naval reserve.

Relief From Germany. Mainz, Germany, April 3.—The city council today voted an appropriation of $10,000 to be sent to the United States to assist in the relief of flood sufferers in Indian, Ohio and other states.

Extreme Suffering. Evansville, Ind., April 3.—Extreme conditions of suffering resulting from the Ohio floods were reported today from Uniontown, Ky., where 1,400 inhabitants of the town and six hundred refugees from the surrounding country were huddled in the fair grounds on the only dry spot in an area of ten miles square. The people are without food, 10,000 rations and tents will be dispatched to Uniontown on the steamer Lowry this afternoon.

Mrs. Orion Sutherland received word yesterday afternoon of the death of Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, who passed away at her home in Baltimore, Md. Mrs. Harrison was a resident of Janesville many years ago, leaving here for Chicago and later for Baltimore. It is expected that the remains will be brought here for burial.

Mrs. Dorothea Rogers Shaw.
Mrs. Dorothea Rogers Shaw, whose funeral was held yesterday afternoon, from the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Reid in Avalon, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, December 17, 1826. She was married to James Fleming in 1851, and emigrated with him to the United States in 1854. They settled at Dundee, Illinois. Four children were born of this union, all of whom are dead. Mr. Fleming passed away in 1858, and two years later his widow was married to John Shaw. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw moved to Cresco, Iowa, where four children, three daughters, and one son were born. They are Mrs. William Simpson of Chaffee, Minn.; Mrs. William Reid of Avalon, Wis.; Mrs. Alexandra Grant of White Water, Wis.; and John Shaw of Alberta, Canada. John Shaw, Sr., the husband of the late Mrs. Rogers Shaw, died January 30, 1912. Mrs. Shaw had been sick for six months previous to her death, her age at that time being 86 years, 3 months, and fourteen days. The remains were taken to Cresco, Iowa, for interment.

INCOME TAX BRINGS $4,500 FOR STATE FROM ROCK COUNTY

Total Collections From Tax in County Amounts to $45,083 or Nearly One-Half the Levy.

Rock county today returned to the state treasurer, the sum of $4,498.30 which is the state's share of the income taxes collected from this county. The total collection received in the county was $45,083, while the levy for the county was $96,381.65. The cities, Elletts, Janesville, Edgerton and Evansville, furnished $43,320 of the total collection while the villages and townships received but a very small amount.

In the table which is given below the first column shows the amount which the different districts returned to the county. This amount is 30 per cent of the total collection or the sum which is given in the second column. The difference between the net and the levy will be the amount of the personal property offset, and delinquencies. The amount in the first column is sent on to the state and the remainder is left in the county treasury. The table which follows will be of interest to Rock county income taxpayers:

STATE MAY FURNISH CREDIT TO FARMERS

Experience of European Farmers is Presented to Legislature in Report to Support Amendment.

Madison, Wis., April 3.—The favorable experience of European farmers in purchasing and improving lands from money loaned them by the central government was placed before the members of the legislature today in the form of a report issued by the state board of public affairs. Passage of the constitutional amendment introduced by Assemblyman Nyce of Elletts, for the purpose of loaning money to farmers, is the burden of the report. The report is written by Wm. M. Dumas of the legislative reference library and was submitted to the legislature by Governor McGovern.

Contained in the report is a brief history and description of the various systems of state loans to farmers in use in New Zealand, Australia and Canada, a discussion of the experience of eleven states, including Wisconsin, in investing their school funds in farm mortgages, and a description of a system of state loans to farmers maintained by the government of the Philippine Islands. The report also declares that there is immediate need for some system of long time mortgage loans. Governor McGovern, in his letter of transmittal, said that such a system will promote the development of agriculture and encourage wholesome conditions of country life in our own state.

After discussing in great detail the different systems of credit the report declares that two kinds of credit are needed by the American farmer. First, credit for short time loans which run only a few weeks or months; and second, credit for long time loans which should run seven years or more. "The American farmer today is not as a rule able to obtain either kind of loan on terms which are reasonable when compared with the rates of interest which he must pay for the money," says the report. "This situation is due primarily to the greed of money lenders, but arises rather from the failure of private enterprise in America to organize adequate systems for the marketing of the farmer's security."

MILWAUKEE SCHOOL MATTER IS ARGUED

Members of City School Board Urge Enactment of Bill Which Would Separate School Department From Other Branches.

Madison, Wis., April 3.—The Milwaukee school board's plan of separating the city's school administration from the general city government was fought out before the assembly education committee yesterday afternoon, the city administration by Assistant City Attorney Timlin, opposing it and members of the school board urging its enactment. Directors Piepiwor, Richardson and Augustine supported it in speeches. Superintendent Fears worked for it also.

A Matter of Funds.
Director Richardson explained the reasons back of the plan. At present he said, the city charges the board for its rooms in the city hall, taxes it for removal of ashes from schoolhouses, for water rents, taxes and control of its own fund. He said the board needs a special attorney for its own work relative to contracts and bonds, condemnation, etc., inasmuch as the city attorney's office is too busy to give to school matters the attention which the board thinks is deserved by the importance of the work. The bill provides for a school architect and a commissioner of buildings who shall be a practical builder. It is proposed to provide a mill tax for erecting school buildings to relieve the bond situation, which Mr. Richardson said would increase the city's general bond issuing possibilities.

Ideal School Law.
This bill will give Milwaukee, as near an ideal school law as it is possible to get, declared Mr. Richardson. "It is not a violent separation of our school matters from our general city government," he said.

Director Augustine said the need of the board's control of its school fund was emphasized by the situation wherein the schools are made to pay for rent, etc., while the board is not allowed to receive the premiums earned on school bonds and is forced to pay any deficit arising when bonds are sold below par. The fact that children formerly were housed in barracks was cited as one of the results of politics in school affairs.

Education should not be hampered or embarrassed by city politics," he said.

Calla Theory Wrong.
Assistant City Attorney Timlin said that the bill is not right in theory, for if carried to its logical extreme it would provide separate departments, absolutely independent of the city government. This would open the way to the establishment of forty or more distinct governments within the city, he said. He maintained the school directors did not understand the city's financial affairs from the standpoint of men who are the whole administration as unit else they would not have planned so radical a departure. He also criticized the bill as being loosely drawn, and said he believed it would prove to be unconstitutional.

MISTAKEN FOR BURGLAR; MAN IS SHOT AND KILLED
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, April 3.—Mistaken for a burglar, Charles Pennington, a commercial traveler, whose home is believed to have been in Cleveland, was shot and killed early today by Harry Farrell, a machine gunner in the hallway of an apartment house at 2348 Calumet avenue.

Pennington had been stopping with a family named Alford on the second floor of the building and Farrell lived on the third floor. Awakened by a noise in the hall Farrell went to the door and saw Pennington. When the latter attempted to crowd through the doorway into the hall Farrell fired point blank. It is thought Pennington ascended to the third floor unintentionally.

HOUSE COMMITTEE CONSIDERS DETAILS OF AN INCOME TAX

Will Probably Make a Change in the Provisional Rates at First Decided Upon.

Washington, April 3.—With the points of difference between President Wilson and the house ways and means committee settled by an agreement on free raw wool, chief interest shifted to free sugar and to the details of the income tax plan. Members of the committee were prepared to receive a final word from the president regarding the tariff measure and to devote much of today to consideration of the income tax. There was a possibility of a change in the provisional rate of 1 per cent on amounts above the exempted $4,000 a year running up to 4 per cent on $10,000 or more a year. A consideration of the question of flexibility of the rates so as to meet emergencies in government needs was evoked an issue as to the constitutionality of any provision that would permit the president by proclamation or otherwise to change any income tax rate. The income tax plan will absorb much of the administrative details of the present corporation tax law and will be administered by the president but will enlarge internal revenue machinery of the treasury department.

The law will be based on the incomes for a single year's operations. Instead of an average of a number of years. The cost of collection of the tax it was estimated will not exceed one per cent of the aggregate revenue from that source. The purpose of this method is to minimize the inequities of the present law and the basis of individual complaint. This is largely based on the workings of the law in Great Britain which collected two hundred million dollars from an income tax.

MRS. DAY ADDRESSES TEMPERANCE UNION

Gives an Interesting Talk on White Slave Traffic at Meeting.

Madison, Wis., April 3.—Mrs. Janet B. Day gave an address at the meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union Wednesday afternoon at their club rooms in west side Odd Fellows' hall. With the white slave traffic as a subject she gave authentic reports to show how alarming is the situation and how the trade is gaining in this country and in foreign lands. The speaker urged that Janesville citizens look to the welfare and protection of the young people, furnishing them with clean amusements to keep them off the streets and to prevent them from spending too much time at dance halls, theatres and similar places. There is a need for club rooms in churches and elsewhere where the boys and girls may be welcomed and where they may secure wholesome reading and entertainment.

"Where in Janesville is there a place for girls to meet?" pertinently asked Mrs. Day. "Absolutely nothing. And at the same time it is known that girls are recruited for the white slave traffic in cities no larger than Janesville and even in the rural districts where the cadets lure girls on promise of better employment or even marriage."

A general discussion among the members of the possible means of remedying the conditions in Janesville followed the address by Mrs. Day. The next meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be on the 15th of April, when an institute will be held of the Beloit and Janesville unions. Dinner will be served at 12:00 o'clock in the dining room at the West Side Odd Fellows' hall, and a very interesting program is being prepared for that date.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.
Editor, Gazette:
Now is the time to prune everything out grape vines and the maples for they will all bleed. Everyone that has not placed their order for trees, plants, vines and shrubbery should do it immediately. Your local nursery man can furnish you these things at about one half the price that traveling men charge and they are better goods.

Beware of humbugs. The "Time Lays Blackberry" is one of them. It is not worth a cent an acre, and now it is advertised as a "grapevine blackberry." I think the "Everbearing tree Raspberry" is another humbug, but I am trying it here at Lake Mills, Wis. Any new thing that is put out with unreasonable promises, keep shy of them, as you would a Florida land scheme.

Big League baseball managers had better take a close, appraising look at Joe Rivers, leading lightweight boxer. Pitching for the Riversides, a semi-professional New York team, he fanned twelve opposing batsmen in a recent game, allowed but four hits, issued not a pass and played the leading part in the 15 to 1 victory won by his team. A versatile youth this Rivers, person.

Wilbur Cooper, pitcher for the Pittsburgh Pirates, ordered frog's legs for dinner recently. When they arrived he shoved them aside.

"Not going to eat them, Coop?" queried Charlie Miller.

"Nope," came the reply, "just wanted to see what they looked like."

Cooper never has eaten a raw oyster. He ordered some the other day to see what they looked like. Cooper used to pitch for the Columbus team of the American Association.

Too much young and tender baseball in near prospect has caused the postponement of the featherweight title bout between Champion Johnny Kilbane and Johnny Dundee, from April 15 to April 26. The Pacific Coast League season opens on the 15th, with Los Angeles playing at home. This meant that much patronage and money would be attracted from the McCarty arena. The home team will be on the road on April 26.

Bowlers of Cleveland, O., have started a movement which is of national importance to bowling men. They have voted to allow the use of the loaded ball, in spite of the fact that the American Bowling Congress has barred the lop-sided sphere. Bowlers from Cleveland and other middle western cities probably will hold an outlaw tournament at Toledo next year.

Bunny Leibold, former star of the Milwaukee team of the American Association, appears to have landed a regular job in the outer garden of the Cleveland Naps. His fielding has been sensational, while his hitting and base running have been highly pleasing to Manager Birmingham, whom he probably will replace in center field, at least at the start of the regular season.

Manager Johnny Evers of the Chicago Cubs has his players walking chalk. At the opening of the training season he asked that they all be in the hotel at 11 p. m., in bed not more than half an hour later, and at the breakfast table not later than 8:30 a. m. The players at first were inclined to slip over. They have been very punctual, however, since the manager informed them that any more infractions of the rules would mean a fine of $100 for each offense.

A story has been going the rounds as to why Luther McCarty, claimant of the white heavyweight championship, is not by any means as popular as he might be on the Pacific Coast. It is claimed that after his fight with Palzer at Los Angeles, McCarty, on a bet, knocked out the brains of a pet goat with a hammer. Western papers had been printing pictures of McCarty and the goat, playing him up as a great lover of animals. The westerners weren't strong for his reversal in form.

INDIVIDUAL STARS STRONG ON SCORING

Remarkable Record Made by High School Basketball Team in Season Just Closed.

(By Scoop.) The local high school state championship basketball five have, in the seventeen games played, run up a total of 800 points to 234 for their opponents. The team has won all of their games, and has established a record for consecutive victories in this section of the country. Their difference in points is also a record, and this stands that the locals have played great ball throughout the year, holding each opponent to a low score. The team which received the most points against the locals was the La Crosse five in the final game at Appleton, the northern five being able to run up 24 points to Janesville's 33.

Janesville's guards each scored more than their opposing forwards, showing that the new style of game was used almost entirely by the locals. This new style of playing, is that of every man being in the teamwork and scoring and not have the guard play their men.

The local forwards were then pushed to obtain baskets themselves, and this combination of teamwork is what aided the Janesville team in establishing several titles, the highest one being that of state champions. Hemming was the high scorer for Janesville, and also in the state, as he established a record for making baskets, which has never been heard of before. While the Janesville five played seventeen games this season, Hemming only played in sixteen games. In this total number of games, he secured 107 baskets to his man's eighteen. This makes an average of seven baskets per game. He easily has won the distinction of being the best center in the state, and he deserves to be captain of the all-state team, which Referee Schroeder has bestowed on him.

Atwood, the remarkable forward for the locals, was next in the starring line. He played in only sixteen games also, and secured 82 baskets to his man's 6. In the Appleton tournament he secured 15 baskets and his man never saw the basket.

Edler ranks third for scoring. Playing at left guard, he was able to secure 75 baskets while his man could count but 25. This is a great record for a guard. He played in all of the games.

Dalton scored 66 baskets during the seventeen games played. He missed one game in playing, and his record is a good one for a first year man on the team. His man received but 9 baskets in these games.

Captain Falter is not a basket man. Playing at sticking guard, he seldom came up the floor. Even for this fact, during the year he held his man to one less than he got himself. Thirty-three is the number credited to him, while his man could get but 32. The subs must be mentioned in the scoring. Ryan played in a good portion of the games, and secured 8 baskets to his man's 2. Stewart is credited with 5 himself, holding his man to nothing. Kuhlman is not a scoring guard either. He only came up the floor several times in the games, he played in, and this accounts for his small number of 2 baskets.

The members of the squad who will be back next year will be Hemming, Atwood, Dalton, Ryan, L. Stewart, Edler, Falter and Kuhlman will graduate in June. A crack team should be seen on the floor next year and predictions are favorable as to their reaching the state tournament at Appleton for the fourth consecutive year.

CARDINALS TO PLAY CHAMPION HIGH TEAM

Game Between Victorious High School Team and Cardinals, Promises to Be Best of Year.

Arrangements for the contest between the championship high school team and the Janesville Cardinals have been completed and the game is to be started on Saturday night at the rink. Manager Langdon will send the strongest team that he can procure against the high school team.

Since the students have captured the highest basketball honor in Wisconsin and have won seventeen straight victories, including contests with the alumni, one of which was played at the rink, it is easily to be seen that the contest Saturday night will be the best of the year. The regular line-up of the victorious team will face the Cardinals and a week's inactivity has served to put the players on edge for the contest to come.

The Cardinals will greatly strengthen their line-up and will furnish better opposition than in the previous game which was won by the high school. Because of the known strength of his opponents in the game Langdon has engaged the services of Davies and Hass of the University Reserve team. Davies played as center in the contest of the Cardinals and the University Reserve, and Hass played guard. These two men put up one of the finest exhibitions of basketball ever seen in the rink. Both of them have had wide experience in the game and Davies will push Hemming to the limit. It is safe to say that Hemming will not score his usual large number of baskets in this game. Provided the high school does not make arrangements to play an interstate contest with Galesburg, this game will be the last for both teams and will be the first opportunity the fans will have of seeing the champion of Wisconsin of seeing the champions of Wisconsin.

The high school team has attracted attention in basketball circles and the largest crowd of the year is expected to turn out and see the last contest of the year.

The line up for the two contesting teams is as follows: High school—Hemming, center; Atwood and Dalton forwards; Falter and Edler, guards; Cardinals—Davies, center; Cunningham and Green, forwards; Langdon and Hass, guards.

PIRATE BASEBALL TEAM READY FOR CHAMPIONSHIP SEASON

Manager Paul Manthei will again pilot the Pirate baseball team for the third season, and judging from previous performances he should make an excellent showing among the state teams. The Pirates have been contenders for the city championship in years past and with the best of promising material that Mr. Manthei has to choose his regular team from, it is evident that he will have a strong team that will give any team of their class a hard game. As it is undecided just what their class will be, Manager Manthei will endeavor to arrange games with some of the strong teams in the vicinity and especially with the Cubs, city champions of last year, and the Cardinals, who finished with a good record. Any teams wishing to book games can write to the Pirate's able manager, Mr. Paul Manthei of Janesville.

MIDDLEWEIGHT TO DO BATTLE IN APRIL

Eddie McGorty is to fight Jimmy Clabby ten rounds in Kenosha, Wis., the middle of next month. The battle are leading contenders for the middleweight title. The fight is noted as bound to be the best middleweight contest staged in the central west since Stanley Ketchel and Billy Papke fought in Milwaukee on June 4, 1909, a knockout in twelve rounds. The main event in the Kenosha fight will occur at 10 o'clock at 6 o'clock on the day of the bout.

Charlemagne's Talisman. Charlemagne's talisman is famous in history. It was of fine gold, circular in shape and set with gems, with two sapphires and a fragment of the holy cross at the center. This charm was found attached to the neck of Charlemagne when his tomb was opened, and was presented to the great Napoleon, who in turn gave it to Hortense, ex-queen of Holland.

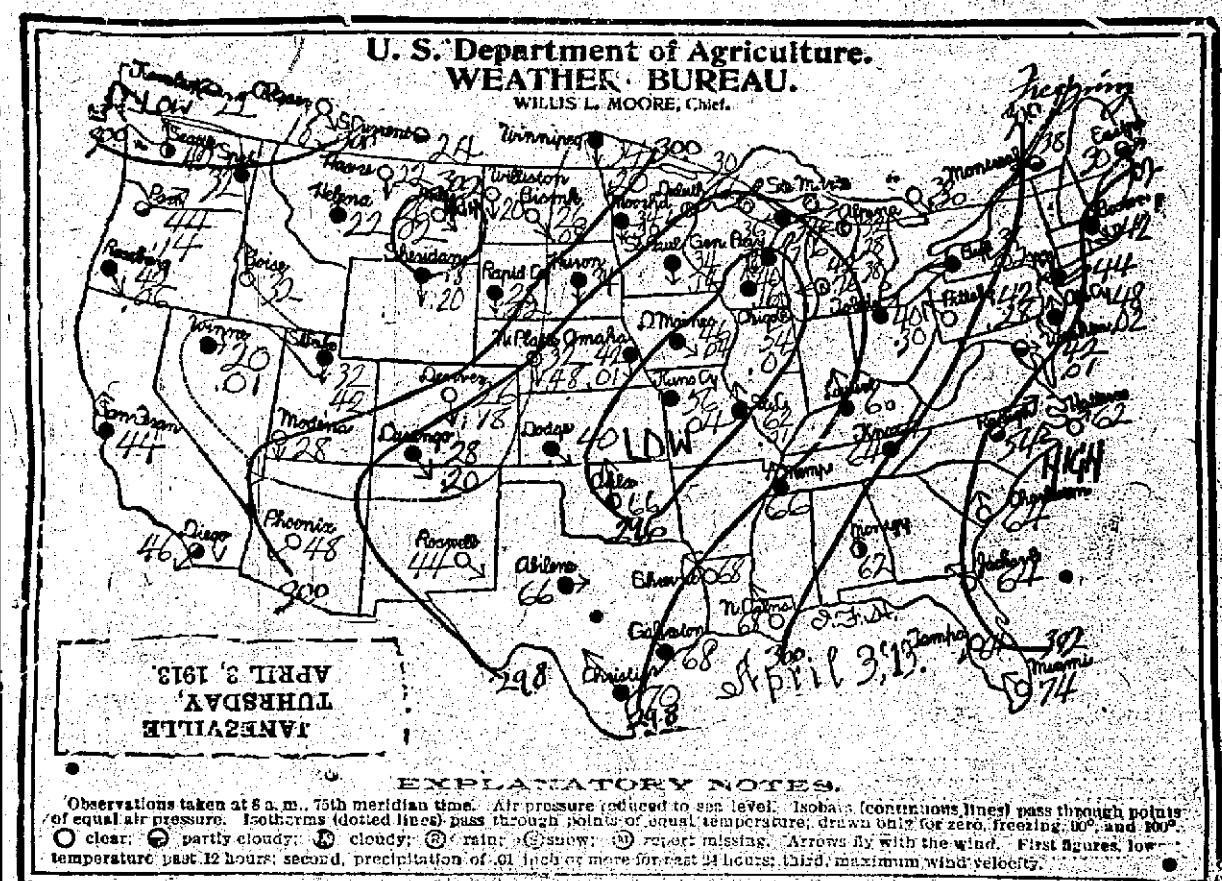

First Use of Stage Money. Stage money, that is, money of no value off the stage, is first said to have been used by David Garrick in the eighteenth century. The money is said to have been made by the wealthy actor-manager so as to look actually like real money. There was little money, even of this counterfeit kind, used in the days of Shakespeare, because of the scarcity of any kind of money, particularly among actors.

BROKEN FINGER COSTS NUNAMAKER PLACE; CADDY FIRST CATCHER THROUGH ACCIDENT

Nunamaker.

Late news from Boston is to the effect that Cady will be first catcher for the Red Sox in 1913. If he is, he can doubtless trace his good fortune to an accident to Catcher Nunamaker last summer. The Red Sox got a good start with Nunamaker behind the bat. But during a game with St. Louis before the season was far advanced, Nunamaker broke a finger on his throwing hand. Cady went in to take his place and did so well that when Nunamaker recovered Manager Stahl was unwilling to take any chances by putting Cady out of the first catcher job, which he had handled expertly while Nunamaker was laid up. Cady was Boston's first catcher during the remainder of the season.

The area of low barometer that has been approaching from the west has slowed up, and now stretches, as a trough of low pressure, from the lake region to Texas. Rain and snow have fallen in connection with it throughout the northern states, and along the Pacific coast from California to Washington. There have been thunderstorms in the upper lake region, upper Mississippi valley, and lower Missouri valley. It is fair in the south, with fairly high temperatures for the season. "I chose my wife," said the vicar of Wakefield, "as she did her wedding gown, not for a fine, glossy surface, but for such qualities as would wear well."

PEACE IN THE BALKANS.

The Christian Science Monitor, in discussing the Balkan affairs, talks of "peace in the Balkans" in the following manner:

"The war in the Balkans is to be followed by a peace upon the terms of which much will depend. Thirty-five years ago the statesmen of Europe met in the Radzwill palace to arrange the treaty of Berlin. That treaty, deliberately took away from the victors in the war the full fruits of their victory. Only on the ground that this victory was an immoral one could such intervention be justified.
 It was not, and no one has ever pretended that it was, an immoral one, and, therefore, the action of the intervening powers was a selfish one.
 A selfish one it most emphatically was, and when the occupation of Cyprus by the United Kingdom, and the secret agreement which placed Bosnia and Herzegovina at the disposal of Vienna, became known, the ethics of the sticklers for the integrity of the Ottoman empire were appreciated."

"The wisdom of the statesmanship which substitutes the treaty of Berlin for the peace of San Stefano is at least open to question. So far as Austria-Hungary was concerned it meant the submergence of the dominating German and Magyar element in a Slav torrent. So far as the United Kingdom was concerned it meant the failure to see that the strongest defense of the Ottoman empire would have been the founding of a series of Balkan states, whose aspirations would have acted as breakwaters to the designs of Austria or Russia on Constantinople. So far as the rest of Europe was concerned it meant the blighting of hopes which made the war of last autumn a certainty before the signatures to the Berlin treaty were appended."

"This lesson does not yet seem to have been learned. The great powers are entering upon the negotiations for the new peace with proposals which are frankly futile or cynically selfish.
 They desire, apparently, to repeat the fiasco of Berlin, and to dry the signatures to the new treaty with the gunpowder of a new war. Sir Edward Grey recommends the establishment of Adrianople as a free city: an idea calculated to produce the maximum of irritation at Sofia with the minimum of advantage to Constantinople.
 Austria-Hungary wishes to cut Servia off from the sea, and to sow the fields round Skutari, Durazzo and Yania with dragons' teeth, like a twentieth-century Jason. Italy, who has herself just seized Tripoli, is deeply concerned for the integrity of Albania; whilst Germany, who in her hour of victory, extorted a crushing indemnity from France, is as concerned as France, who is a heavy holder of Ottoman securities, that no indemnity shall be levied by the Balkan league.

 The one thing in danger of being forgotten is the interests of the victors, and if this should occur, the mistake of 1878 will have been repeated."

NEED ENCOURAGEMENT.

Janesville is recovering from the shock of Tuesday night's configuration. The business men who lost their all in the fire need encouragement. Now is the time to show the true Janesville spirit and boost for the home industries and home merchants. Archie Reid, Brown Bros., Amos Rehberg and the others who lost their stores and their stocks, wiped out in a few minutes by the unconquerable blaze, should be urged to open their stores again, even if in a new location. They are too good citizens and merchants to be lost to the business community of the city.
 Janesville needs them and it is the duty of every citizen to unite in aiding them in their decision to resume their business.

CHIEF KLEIN.

Looking at the results of Tuesday night's fire, the possibility of the flames sweeping the whole of the downtown district and being stopped no one knows where, much credit should be given to Chief Henry Klein and fellow workers. It is not often that any Chief of a fire department in a city that size of Janesville is brought face to face with the conditions that existed Tuesday night, and the excellent work of Chief Klein and the able manner with which he handled the situation deserve unqualified praise. An efficient fire department is an asset to the city and Janesville can boast of such an asset, led by an able and fearless chief.

AN OPPORTUNITY.

On Tuesday, April 15, every citizen of Janesville will be given an opportunity of uniting their efforts in boosting Janesville by joining the Boosters' club, whose slogan should be "Twenty-five Thousand or Bust!"
 The meeting is going to be at the Myers theatre, kindly donated for the gathering, the music furnished by the Moose band, also donated, and it is going to be a memorable meeting that everyone can not afford to miss. Join the Boosters' club and watch the city grow. Stop knocking your home community and be a booster. Plan to attend the meeting and unite your efforts with the others to make Janesville a bigger and better city.

A NEW BRIDGE.

Let there be no mistake about the Milwaukee street bridge question. A new bridge is absolutely necessary.
 It should be built at once without any delay. Janesville can not afford to have the present fire-eaten structure repaired now and in a few years replaced. Mayor Fathers and Councilmen Cummings and Milburne will make no mistake if they decide in favor of a new bridge, a structure that will be the pride of its citizens and not a ramshackle old affair repaired and repatched until nothing but the underpinnings of the old structure really remained. Now is the time for action and there should be no delay.

Now comes an expert and declares that much riding in automobiles causes flat feet. But, in the opinion of most automobilists, that isn't as bad as flat tires.

Possibly there are members of the British cabinet who would not object to being kidnapped by suffragists if the perpetrators were young and pretty enough.

The new president and the new Congress are slow in getting down to business. They have not sent a commission to inspect the Panama Canal zone yet.

The announcement is made that none of the Madero brothers will live again, in Mexico. Probably true, whether any of them returns there or not.

Julian Hawthorne, according to his attorneys, is penniless. It does seem impossible to make money in literature, even that of high finance.

Only one situation would satisfy the solicitous seekers in Washington
 — a place for everybody and everybody in his place.

Adrianople and most of the baseball stars having ceased to hold out, there may be a chance for Congress to get some attention.

Trousers will be worn tighter than ever this summer. But it is to be hoped the same thing will not apply to those in them.

Of course, Easter hats and the 48-cent-suffrage-parade hats are two entirely different and separate things.

AN EPURE MOMENT.

Old Man.
 He didn't have a stylish wife who followed all of fashions' fads with rats and hobble skirts and pads.
 She never begged her accounts.
 By running bills of large amounts
 For willow plumes and four-foot hats
 And fancy high-heeled shoes and spats
 And evening gowns of texture fair.
 She wore no jewels in her hair.
 She never had a desire to skip
 To Europe for a summer trip.
 In social realms she didn't shine
 And never had a stand in line
 At swell receptions dressed to kill.
 There was no unpaid modiste's bill.
 Though like all women everywhere
 She never skulked about that fact.
 But got along with wondrous tact.
 The servant problem pestered her not.
 She never worried o'er her lot
 Or caused a single family jar.

Because she had no touring car.
 And last, but not the least to note,
 She didn't even want to vote.

According to Uncle Abner.

By the time a feller finally finds out the best kind of fuel to use in his furnace, his furnace is 'worth out' and he has to start all over again.
 There are 'worse' habits than smokin' cigarettes, 'undoubtedly, but I can't think what they are.

There ain't nobuddy as wise as a feller who has been to New York once.

A feller will kick about a 25-cent meat bill, but will pay a $25 automobile bill without a murmur.

There is somethin' human nature in this world that it is never going to be a very dull place.

There is only one thing better than workin' for fame and that is workin' for money.

A feller who throws his snow shovel away before the Fourth of July is one of our most famous goats.

 Easter hats didn't come so close after the winter taxes.

 Tumina of Unit 3852, Zone 111.

A feller might as well buy a 10-cent seegar in the first place. When he buys a nicker seegar it takes a nicker's worth of matches to keep it goin'.

A feller always refers to his automobile as 'her' be'kuz it is so expensive.

One of the principal crops of Mexico is ex-presidents.

What Has Become of These.
 The folding hat rack that used to hang in the hall.

The old fashioned couple who used to go out buggy riding.

The folks who used to eat dinner in the middle of the day.

The good old lady in steel-trimmed eyeglasses who used to make crullers and put up yarb tea.

Those student lamps that used to adorn every home.

The whatnot that stood in the corner and held everything from a Chinese idol to a case of wax flowers.

The foot scraper that used to be seen on every front stoop.

Those brilliantly painted lambrequins.

The old-fashioned weather prophet who had a pet corn.

Trees Resist Lightning.
 The electrical resistance of trees is quite great, a quality which protects them to a considerable degree from lightning stroke. This resistance varies greatly with the character of the tissues and also with the temperature. This fact results in an annual and daily period in resistance.
 The cambium layer shows the least electrical resistance, followed by the phloem and sapwood.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell, and completely derange the whole system, when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reliable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J.
 Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure, be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonial free.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

BASEFULNESS IS INVERTED EGOTISM

Recently the newspapers had a very funny story of a jury foreman so bashful he could not report the verdict. He got it so twisted that the jury had to be dismissed, and had not the prisoner simplified matters by pleading guilty a new trial would have been necessary.

It should be a part of our public school education to train people to speak in public. Every man and woman should be able to express himself or herself intelligently before an assemblage if called upon to do so.

There is no more inherent difficulty in speaking to many people than in speaking to one or two.

It is merely a matter of forgetting oneself and thinking of the thing to be said.

Bashfulness arises from self consciousness and is only a form of inverted vanity.

People who think more of their hands and feet than of their message are guilty of this reverse egotism.

The man who really has something to say and means to say it will get a hearing. By having his mind on his thought he forgets himself, and the rest is easy.

He who thinks of himself more than of his theme must have either a very slight theme or an inflated idea of himself.

There come times in every man's life when it becomes necessary to express himself in public just as there come times when he must defend himself. He has not a proper all around training unless he can do either should occasion arise.

This does not mean that he should make himself a nuisance by talking too much or that he should be quarrelsome. It only means that he should be able to acquit himself with credit and courage under all circumstances.

Courage is the keynote in both cases.
 It may require the same sort of courage to overcome stage fright that is called for in facing a bully. The man who is worth his salt will have enough sheer grit to do either.

If you would speak in public keep your nerve and stop thinking of yourself. That is the secret.

Australian Justice.

Recently after hearing his first case an Australian justice of the peace delivered himself thus: "There's been a lot of lies told in this case, and I don't know who's been tellin' 'em. So I'm goin' to fine you $2. If yer guilty yer kettin' off very light, an' if yer not guilty I'll teach yer to be more pertickler about the company yer

Eggnog for Invalids.

Separate the yolk from the white of an egg, beat the yolk thoroughly and then beat the white to a froth, add a heaping teaspoonful of sugar, a trifle of salt. Stir these into the yolk and then add the white. Add enough milk to fill the glass and stir. Add either one or one-half spoonful of sherry.
 The salt offsets the flavor of the egg.

Directing Children Aright.

The young need to be taught that although there is sometimes a pleasure of the senses in committing sin, it is inevitably followed by remorse and punishment. Crime, remorse, punishment form an inseparable trio.
 On the other hand, while it is often hard to do right, the sense of satisfaction, self-respect and self-control that follows right action is worth all the effort made.

Doing The Little Things Well

That is a characteristic of this store. In recognition of the truism that a little transaction which may seem small to the merchant is often of great importance to the purchaser, our great systems of buying, selling, delivery, exchange and adjusting, are organized to care for the smallest transactions in the same satisfactory manner as the large ones. In merchandise there are many hundreds of little articles for which only occasional calls are made, but when they are wanted it is to fill a need which nothing else can fill properly. It is our constant effort to supply these trifles when desired—it accords with our idea of completeness of stock. The same regard for detail is exemplified in the thousand and one ways which go to make up satisfactory ideal merchandising. Likewise in selecting and pricing merchandise, each article is purchased with the knowledge of what similar things there are in the market, and each price is made as low or lower than the same or like qualities elsewhere.

FAMILY NEAR DEATH FROM ASPHYXIATION

Mrs. E. R. Hayford and Children Nearly Overcome by Gas Escaping From Coal Stove.

Mrs. Martha Hayford and children residing at 627 North Chatham street, were nearly overcome early this morning by gas escaping from the magazine of a coal stove. The peculiar cry of distress uttered by Irwan Brown, one of the grandchildren was heard by Fred Hayford, who slept in the same room. He went to the bedside of the child but could not awake him for some time although he bawled and slapped him briskly. No sooner had he been brought to consciousness when Miss Hayford called for assistance in reviving Adeline, another grandchild who was also affected by the gas. Edwin Hayford, who slept in a room to which the poisonous fumes did not penetrate, was awakened by hearing the commotion and assisted in bringing the little girl back to consciousness. Mrs. Hayford, a third grandchild, and the adults in the home also were affected by the escaping gas. Because of the crippling of the telephone service, a physician could not readily be summoned. No serious consequences are expected to follow the effects of the gas.

MEETING OF COUNCIL FOR THIS AFTERNOON

Members Could Not Be Brought Together for Session Yesterday. Recent Proceedings.

Because of the many things needing their attention yesterday following the fire of the night previous the members of the City Council could not be assembled for the proposed special meeting to take the first steps toward the rebuilding of the Milwaukee Street bridge. When the Council held its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon, an adjournment was taken until three o'clock this afternoon, and at this time the replacement of the ruined bridge will be brought up for discussion and initial action. Some decision will also be made on temporary repairs to the old bridge. At Tuesday's meeting the amended automobile regulation ordinance was given its second reading. A petition was received from property owners on Glen street requesting that no curb and gutter be laid there this year. Permission was given to John L. Peters to pile building material in East Milwaukee street during repairs to his building. Similar permission was given to William McVicar to pile material on a part of South Main street while repairs were made to his residence, and to St. John's German Lutheran congregation to pile material on Peace Court and North Bluff street.

Saturday is the big shoe day at King, Cowles & Fifield.

The sale was attended by horsemen and liverymen from all over the state and because of the great amount of stock that is to be sold it was thought it would not be possible to complete the sale today. Forty horses were sold besides the enormous livery equipment including twenty-five top buggies and numerous harnesses. Everything connected with the business was sold even to the office furniture. The place is leased for April 15th to the Witches Implement company who will take over the building immediately after vacation by the previous occupants.

LIGHTNING DOES DAMAGE TO HOME OF W. H. LITTS
Quantity of Clothing Burned; Plaster Knocked Down; and Walls Blackened With Soot From Chimney.

Lightning early last evening struck the residence of Willis J. Litts, 504 South Bluff street, burning all the clothing in one closet and knocking considerable plaster off the walls. The bolt followed the chimney to the ground, blew out all the stoppers, and caused a violent discharge of soot into all the rooms, the walls and furnishings of which were badly blackened. The damage to the house is estimated at about $100, and to clothing at about $200. The fire department was called but found no fire burning on their arrival. All the burned clothing had been removed from the closet and the occupants had been covered with soot.

Better take out a fire insurance policy at once and be protected. We represent only sound, conservative companies. J. H. Burns & Son, Room 2, Central Bldg.

NUMEROUS MODIFICATIONS TO HEDDING BOXING BILL

Madison, Wis., April 3.—When the Hedding boxing bill is reported favorably by the committee on judiciary, it is understood that the bill will come to the house in modified form with many of the objections which have been urged against it at the hearings. So many sections of the present bill may have to be amended that it is generally believed that the judiciary committee will report out a substitute measure. That the committee intends to recommend the bill for passage is evident from a canvass which has been made of the different members. Assemblyman Hedding believes that most of the opposition to the measure comes from a misunderstanding of its real provisions.

The Work We Love. To business that we love we rise betime, and go to it with delight—Shakespeare.

MAKE PETITIONS AGAINST FIFTY CAR LIMIT BILL

Madison, Wis., April 3.—Petitions from nearly every section of the state were presented to the assembly this morning protesting against the passage of the fifty car limit bill. This measure seeks to limit the number of cars in trains at fifty. The railroad employees claim that many wrecks could be obviated if trains were shorter. If this is not feasible they think more employees should be furnished to operate long trains. The petitions which are being sent to the legislature are signed mostly by shippers who claim that such a measure would be an outgrowth of the out of business should be made at once; regardless of the length of the trains. The hearing on this bill will be held next week. Present indications are that it will be attended by more people than any other hearing conducted by a legislative committee this year. Another important bill coming up for consideration is that all mail cars needed in the state of Wisconsin shall be steel structures. Postal mail clerk employees claim that their lives are endangered in wooden cars in case of wrecks.

FOUR MEN WILL DIE UPON SAME GALLOWS

Two of Condemned Men Are White—First to be Hanged in Montgomery County Since The War.

Montgomery, Ala., April 3.—Four men will be hanged from the same scaffold here tomorrow unless Governor O'Neal should grant an eleventh hour stay of sentence, which is not expected. Two of the condemned men are white. This will be the first time since the war that a white man has been executed in Montgomery county.

Walter Jones and Arnold Gilmer are the two white men slated to pay the extreme penalty. Jones was convicted of having killed Sloan Rowan in a passenger coach of a train just ready to pull out of the station here on July 17, 1912. Rowan was on his way to Benton to testify before the grand jury in an arson case in which Jones was the principal. Arnold Gilmer, while under the influence of liquor, shot and killed Mrs. Lucile Tippetts, who had visited the house with the intention of killing her husband and could give no reason for shooting the woman in the absence of Tippetts.

John Adams, a negro, killed a policeman in the fall of 1910 when the officer called at the house to arrest him for a minor offense. A citizen came to the aid of the policeman and wounded Adams severely. His life was despaired of for weeks. When it was seen he would recover several attempts were made to lynch him. The militia was called out to guard the jail and succeeded in dispersing the mobs. Coleman Gorman, the second condemned to death, was convicted of the murder of a negro woman.

TUBERCULAR CATTLE QUARANTINE SYSTEM

State Veterinarian Proposes Legislation to Prevent Waste in Handling Tubercular Cattle.

Madison, Wis., April 3.—Dr. O. H. Ellason, state veterinarian, has been agitating proposed legislation, the idea of which seems to have been original with him, to obviate wholesale waste in the handling of tubercular cattle. Dr. Ellason proposes that the legislature now sitting shall enact a law which will authorize the Wisconsin Livestock Sanitary board to permit individual owners or companies, upon application to it, to establish quarantines for the purpose of raising healthy calves from tubercular cattle under what is known as the "Bang system," and in confirmation with such rules and regulations as may be established by the board. The bill also provides for the transfer of ownership of tubercular cattle intended to be used upon such quarantine premises from the original owner to the owner of the quarantine establishment, when sanctioned by the board.

A bill is now being drafted for such legislation and its sponsors are optimistic as to its final passage. Just what the regulations will be is not known at this stage, but it is certain that some of the following rules will be imposed:

The premises will be required to be situated so that there will be no surface drainage upon adjoining pasture land. Strict regulations will be imposed as to the matter of fencing and it will be likely that such premises will be required to be enclosed in a double fence, the inner fences to be maintained at a distance of at least 10 rods from the line fences and public highway, and both fences to be kept in good repair at all times. The premises must be placarded. The distance of the buildings upon such premises from adjoining buildings which are destined for breeding and dairy purposes will be kept upon the livestock sanitary board will prohibit the sale of milk from tubercular cattle upon such premises, from being sold or removed from the premises either as milk, cheese or butter, nor permit them to be used for human consumption upon the premises. No animals of and kind will be permitted to be removed from the quarantine premises except under direction of the board. It is further provided that the removal of cattle to the quarantine premises shall in all cases be supervised by the state veterinarian or one of his deputies.

Madison, Wis., April 3.—A large party of press representatives left here today for Hamburg, the guests of the Hamburg-American line to witness the launching of the giant vessel that is being built for the company at the shipyards of Blohm and Voess. The new vessel will be called the Europa and will be placed in service between Hamburg and New York. She is a sister ship of the Imperator, the largest ship in the world. Prince Regent Ludwig of Bavaria has accepted an invitation to be sponsor at the launching, and his son, Prince Rupprecht, will christen the vessel.

The Europa will be 950 feet long and 100 feet beam and will have a displacement of 50,000 tons. She will be equipped with internal combustion engines and two 1,500 horsepower Diesel motors, and will use oil as fuel. There are to be eleven decks on the new liner. She will have accommodations for more than 4,000 passengers of all classes and will carry a crew of 1,000. Every feature ever devised for the convenience, comfort and entertainment of ocean travelers has been included in the plans for the new giantess of the seas. Two novel features will be a regulation tennis court on the upper deck and a swimming pool, 75 by 25 feet, on one of the lower decks.

The Europa will not be a fast boat, being built more for solid comfort than great speed. Her time across the Atlantic will be in the neighborhood of seven days.

The most powerful Marconi ever set up at sea will be installed, the unusual height of her masts making it possible to receive or transmit messages across the broad expanse of the Atlantic ocean. The Europa will always be in direct communication with either her namesake, continent or America.

PENDULUMS.

WHEN we try too hard for some one thing, it occasionally happens that we defeat our purpose by the blind intensity of our desire. In no direction is this so true as in the bringing up of children. Over-indulgence is not the only way to spoil a child. Over-tendency in trying to make a child develop desirable qualities sometimes results in making a child go to opposite extremes.

Most of us are pendulums by nature. The more violently we are pushed in one direction, the more violently we ultimately swing in the other. An acquaintance of mine who is the mother of a very pretty little girl refined in her intercourse with the other sex. Of course that is a natural desire for any mother, but in this woman it is a mania and drives her to an excess of severity. She is always scolding this lovely little girl for some outburst of her natural vivacity. She is always forbidding her some pleasure in which her companions are freely permitted to join.

And of course the harvest of such severity is ripening for her sad reaping. Her daughter is rapidly growing deceitful. If she cannot have a good time with her friends openly, she will have it secretly. And as everyone knows, the pleasures that must be enjoyed by stealth are the most dangerous and fascinating. The walk home from school with her boy friend would be the most natural thing in the world if it were permitted, but it becomes a guilty adventure when it is forbidden fruit. The step from plotting things like this, to plotting less harmless adventures is not a long one, and I am told this little girl has already taken it.

If this is true, I firmly believe the mother had only her mistake to blame. The girl's deceitfulness and impurity are the violent swing of the pendulum, which has been pushed out of its orbit in one direction, and balances itself by swinging too far in the other.

In another family, the mother's excessive fear of fire, and her insistence upon needless precautions, have driven her whole family to the opposite extreme. I never saw anyone so careless about fire as one of her sons who now has a home of his own.

Again, a mother who tried to dominate every moment of her children's lives, say what they should eat, drink, wear, read, study, enjoy, is now struggling with an ultra-independent daughter, who resents even suggestions as to what she shall do. The mother does not realize that she is dealing with the swing of the pendulum, but that is just what it is.

Moderation is a splendid quality in any relation of life, but in none more so than in this.

As the twig is bent so is the tree inclined, but be careful you don't bend it so hard as to get it all out of shape.

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN
by Barbara Boyd
Is She Unwomanly?

SHE was a woman of eighty. She journeyed without stopping, three days and three nights, arriving at her destination the morning of the fourth day. On this day, she lectured in the afternoon and again in the evening. And at the close of her lecture, well on toward midnight, she was as bright and "chipper," as interested and interesting as a girl of twenty—far more so, in fact, for no girl of twenty would have had the fund of knowledge and ripe experience to draw upon and to make her entertaining, that had this lady of fourscore.

Her hair was snowy white, drawn back quite simply in soft, pretty waves and knotted behind. Her dress was black silk, with a dainty touch of white lace at her throat. Her address was on the effect of beauty and art in the home, and the good influence of these upon children.

Was there anything unwomanly in all this? Could she be said to be stepping out of the sphere which, some think, Providence has prescribed for woman's activities?

Surely one would think that in this day and generation no such criticism could be made.

Yet, some there are who think woman loses her womanliness when she goes upon the public platform; that when she steps outside the home in her work, she is stepping outside of her rightful domain.

But is not such a view extremely narrow, and provincial? And also, is not such a viewpoint selfish? Is not the woman doing a great work and a great good in inspiring to the highest type of home life? Is she not working for the cause of the home in its biggest and broadest sense, when she looks beyond the one home—her own—and views all homes as worthy of her interest, and of her desire to bring to them all such good as she can?

And as to womanliness, is it a matter of work? Is it not rather a matter of person? Cannot a woman be womanly if it is in her thus to be, no matter what she does? And if she lacks the characteristics of womanliness, will it matter what she does? Can she gain it through any work she may choose to do?

So it would seem as if the prejudice against woman's stepping outside of her own individual home into work for the home at large should by this time be quite dead and peacefully buried. When looked into keenly, it is sure to have no substance. It is merely a pretence, an empty form. And it is time we were done with pretences and forms. We want to think upon and live with realities—true realities—those that measure up with the eternal facts of the universe.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS
BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Do you think it necessary to ask a girl's father for her hand in marriage, if the girl is willing? If so, how would you go about asking for her if you were me? (2) Do you think it is right to ask a girl with whom you are deeply in love, and you are very well satisfied she loves you, to wait for a young man one to two years, until the groom-to-be is financially able to take the step? (3) Please give me a few points as to proposing to a girl? UNDECIDED.

(1) It is the courteous thing to do. Ask for a private talk with him and then frankly tell him that you love his daughter, that you have asked her to be your wife and she is willing, and you hope he will make you both happy with his consent to your marriage. (2) If you are both old enough to know what you want—yes. (2) There are no rules for this. First time you get a chance, tell her you love her and ask her if she loves you well enough to put up with you for life. If she says she does—get busy, young man. That's the time to kiss her.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have been corresponding with a young man for three years. Previous to this I was going with him for two years until he left the city for his home, which is some distance from here. His letters are very nice, being more businesslike than otherwise. If I don't answer his letters right away when received I always receive a second letter asking why I don't write.

Nothing has been said of an engagement between us. Do you think he loves me or is just writing me to be friendly, although I love him dearly. I would give up writing to him if I thought he wasn't serious and he has rather kept me in doubt, although his letters are very nice.

(2) He is six years my senior, being twenty-five. Do you think he is too old for me.

(3) I go to theaters and dances with other fellows. Am doing wrong by doing them.

(1) He must like you very well, but he may not care for you as a sweetheart. If I were you I would appreciate him as a good friend and not think of him as a lover unless he makes some advance in that direction. Good friends are worth keeping, my dear. (2) No. (3) No.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What are the latest colors in suits for men and women this year? (2) I am twenty-one, deeply in love with a tall, young man of twenty-eight. He never drank, has no bad habits of any kind and is so good to me. One day, Leap Year, I asked him if he wanted to get married. He said he was too poor to get married; said he would do the best he could to help me. Shall I get married or not? We will take your advice. C. C. L.

(1) Blue, brown and gray for men. For women: Tan, gray, blue, cerise and various shades of red are very popular. (2) Suppose you go over the matter together, figure out what can be done with his income for two people, and then decide for yourself. If he is a good man and you love him, and there is some prospect of his doing better, you two might pull together. But always remember that you should count on sickness and children when figuring on the future in marriage.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

AWAKE this morning with me, friends, the old and the new—Emerson.

CHAFING DISH DISHES.

Few people realize the convenience and comfort one may get from the use of a chafing dish. Especially the woman without a maid.

For a late supper, or Sunday night lunch, there is nothing more inviting than a chafing dish and well-stocked tray.

If one cares to have the service especially dainty, and who does not, have the first preparations made long before the meal. Measure the butter and make it into attractive balls, a tablespoonful to a ball. Have the other ingredients in pretty dishes well arranged on the tray, to be easily found. Cut the meat or shred the fish, so that the mere putting together will be an entertainment for those who look on. Always keep certain things, as seasonings, in the same place.

When purchasing a chafing dish, see that the hot water pan, too, has handles, as well as the blazer, by which it may be lifted. This dish may be used on the table in many ways when the chafing dish is not in use.

To Poach Eggs.—Break each egg separately in a saucer, and drop into the blazer of hot water; cover until the eggs are firm, remove from the pan to circular pieces of toast that have been prepared in the kitchen, and serve at once, after seasoning with salt, pepper and bits of butter.

Hamburg Steaks, well seasoned and shaped and cooked until brown, are delicious served from the chafing dish.

Vienna Steaks.—Take a fourth of a pound each of lean beef and veal chopped. Season well with three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt, paprika and nutmeg, a few drops of onion juice and a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Add an egg well beaten; shape into small steaks, and let stand several hours. Cook in a hot blazer that has been well buttered. Cook eight to ten minutes. Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, a dash of salt and paprika and spread on the steaks.

Nellie Maxwell.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY
Harmony and joy will surround your domestic circle and new friendships will be formed in material things you will also be fortunate, and your earnest efforts will be crowned with success. You are warned against quarreling with any one. Those born today will have high courage and will persevere in spite of dangers, thereby winning the respect and admiration of all. With this warning, come fatterers, who will rule them, unless they are taught when young to distinguish between the false and the true.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To Purify Water.—After boiling water about 30 minutes, pour into open jar. Let stand a few seconds, then tap on sides of jar enough to disturb water. This makes the settlements go to the bottom of the jar, leaving clear water to turn off from top.

After experimenting, I found this out. Hearing of some who could not obtain clear water without having it stand such a long time, I thought it might help someone else.

Invalid Help.—It helps an invalid who cannot be long on her feet to have casters (the ball-bearing kind) put on a light, ordinary chair. Keep them so well oiled that they will move readily; then, by using the feet as in walking, though really sitting in the chair, it is possible to move about the room without trouble.

Clean Kitchen Sink.—Sprinkle chloride of lime on those ugly brown spots in your white enameled sink and see how quickly they disappear. If it is very badly stained, it may require the second application. It will tarnish the brass.

Domestic Science DEPARTMENT
CONDUCTED BY Mrs. Alice Mitchell Kirk

There was an old saying, "Every one must eat his peck of dirt." Times and thought have changed, and this peck of dirt has dwindled in quantity and quality, and we are slowly but surely coming into the light of intelligent and safe living. The world's progress depends upon it and the home is the logical place for this work to begin and decrease the death rate of 250,000 children who die annually of preventable diseases.

Mean if women would know the right foods for children from the time they were born, there would not be this terrible loss of child life. This reform must come through the schools and the home.

I believe that every housekeeper wants to give her family pure food. Usually she buys the best that her purse allows, trusting that it may be pure, and only having the merchant's word for it.

I have thought a club or group of women might analyze a number of foods which suffer most adulteration and themselves determine their purity. Very little is needed in the way of equipment for this, and the work is light and interesting. Any of these articles for testing may be obtained at a first-class drug store.

Test for Pure Coffee.—Apparatus.—Glass tumbler, ice water, finely ground coffee, one teaspoon.

Test—Fill the tumbler three-fourths full of ice water; add the coffee and stir well for a minute. Withdry the spoon. If the coffee rises to the top of the water leaving it clear, the coffee is pure. If adulterated with chicory, cereal, browned peas or beans they will sink to the bottom of the glass. Chicory will color the water a light muddy brown as it sinks.

Watch for other pure food tests. Cut this out, paste on cards and file for reference in your card-index box.

TALKS WITH MOTHERS

(By Gertrude Stevens Ayres.)

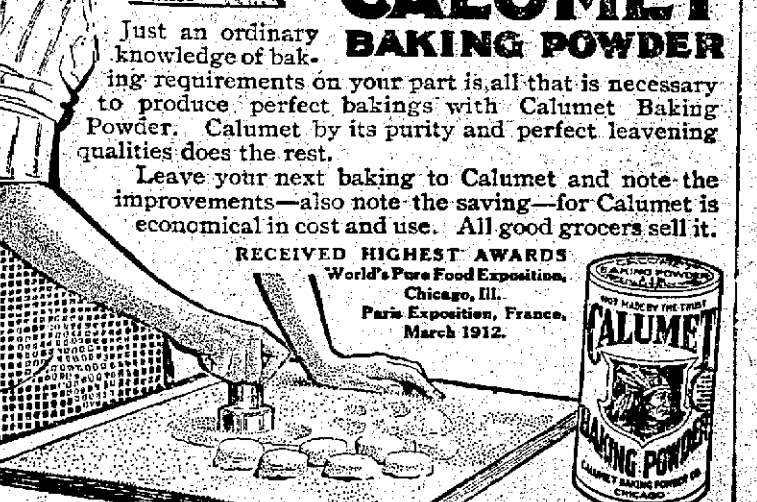

RECORDS
Mary Davis pined with puffed-up brow and troubled eyes. She had been confident that in the book that lay open before her, she should find recorded data that might throw some light on the question that had come up for discussion in the Mothers' Meeting which she had attended the day previous.

The question had been raised as to how early in life the average child awoke to a consciousness of its own individual existence. She prided herself on being a "modern mother," and she could remember indefinitely a time when Mary Junior first began to talk about herself. "Mary wants doll," and "Mary's big girl," were soon followed by "I want my doll," and "I am a big girl."

There were many things of interest, but few of real value in the baby-book that had just been searched unsuccessfully; and with a sigh she closed the record, over which she and her husband had spent so many happy hours, with the wish that some one would offer suggestions for records of real value, not only to the immediate family but to all interested in Child Culture.

Baby's height and weight at regular intervals; the food furnished, and hours of feeding; hours of sleep, and the amount of sleep; the nature, nature and duration of illnesses; the nursery and its equipment are of vitally more interest in after years than samples of dresses and wraps.

Methods used in developing the little mind and dates as to singular manifestations of the same furnish material for scientific consideration, and are much more valuable than "When baby took his first ride," and "Presents received the first Christmas."

Such records furnished the proper authorities would supply material that now has to be gleaned by investigators, traveling from house to house.

The Children's Bureau.
I wonder if all mothers know about this new department at Washington that is not yet a year old.

After five years of endeavor, the law was passed April 9, 1912, establishing a bureau that "shall investigate and report upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of children and child life among all classes of our people, and shall especially investigate the question of infant mortality, the birth rate, orphanage, juvenile courts, desertions, dangerous occupations, accidents and diseases of children, employment, legislation affecting children."

The first field study to be undertaken by this Bureau is on the first subject mentioned in the law, namely infant mortality, or the deaths of babies less than a year old.

Today we know that a great infant mortality is a national disaster; and such an investigation can only be pursued where dependable vital statistics can be obtained.

What is the present condition of birth registration laws in this country? The New England States, Pennsylvania and Michigan are the eight states furnishing reliable records which can be used in such an investigation. Sixteen states including Wisconsin, have recently enacted laws or amendments which seem to provide adequate machinery for effective birth registration; but sufficient time has not elapsed for a thorough test. Arkansas, Georgia, North and South Carolina have no laws regarding the registration of births.

Here is a place where the mother, no matter how humble or ignorant, can help forward a big movement. She can ascertain by inquiry or learn by inspection whether her babies and those of her acquaintances have been duly registered.

She can use her influence for the enactment of approved legislation on the subject, especially by talking to neighbors and friends. Efficiency and reform are the results of awakened public opinion.

Makes Quite a Difference.

In some sections kindlings are very hard to secure, owing to a lack of timber of all kinds. JANESVILLE WOMAN IN FLOOD DISTRICT

Mrs. Frank Nicholson, Representing Caloric Company, Writes From Cincinnati:

Numerous reports have been received by Janesville residents from friends or relatives that were in the flood districts and all have been unable to express all the horrors and suffering that the people have to contend with. Mrs. Frank Nicholson wrote the following letter to Mrs. Marion L. Stoddard residing at 521 Chatham street, showing that conditions in Dayton, and surrounding country have not been exaggerated by newspapers. Mrs. Nicholson was in Cincinnati at the time of this writing, having left Dayton only a week before the catastrophe occurred. While the conditions at Cincinnati were far from being safe, the danger was far less than at the stricken city of Dayton. Mrs. Nicholson is employed by the Caloric company as a demonstrator and had been sent to Dayton as their representative. Arriving at Cincinnati she was unable to leave the city for further points on the Ohio river where she was to represent the Janesville company. The letter is as follows:

Dear Mother:

I don't know whether you will get this or not but will make a try anyway. Ain't this just awful, but don't worry about me as I am absolutely safe. It is a good thing that I got away from Dayton, as the whole city is doomed.

We are flood-bound here. That is, the water is all around; can't get mail or send telegrams. All bridges are gone. Of course I will have to stay a while, but expect to come home as soon as I can get there. All business is dead here and all around the country. We just got word that the reservoirs at Salina, Ohio, the largest in the world, have given away. It will take three days to reach here as the Ohio river here is over sixty feet and ten feet more is expected. All families anywhere near the river have had to move. The papers did not picture the stricken parts half as bad as it really is, but I am safe as long as I stay here and you may be sure that I will stay here for a while. Have not had a letter this week and I wonder about Frank. I will write often. Perhaps you may get some of them as there was a little mail sent out yesterday and then up to Chicago.

With love to everybody.

MAY.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

THE ENGAGEMENT RING.

THE engagement ring is a polite method of informing the general public that the wearer is about to commit matrimony with the aid of orange blossoms and a befuddled bachelor. It is worn on the third finger of the left hand so that everybody can see it and sympathize with the groom-elect.

When a young man offers his hand and heart to some girl who stands in a recess of the front porch, bathed in the moonlight and a blush that cost $4 a half ounce, and is accepted before he has time to work up to his peroration, the first thing he does is to invest in an engagement ring that causes father to wake up at night and perspire heavily. It is becoming the custom nowadays for a young man who yearns to get married on $3 a week to buy a $250 engagement ring on the installment plan, and then exchange it after marriage for a tame cow and a fireless cooker. This is a tasty and inexpensive method of furnishing the home which pleases everybody but the bride who has to put up with a band ring earned by collecting tobacco tags.

The diamond is usually chosen in buying an engagement ring because it does not fade or peel and can be used over and over again. Some men never think of offering marriage to anybody without having a 14-carat diamond ring in their vest pocket, ready for immediate use. It frequently happens that a woman will accept a diamond ring and the betrothal kiss while under the influence of the full moon, and then send the ring back the next day with a note stating that she can't marry a man who breaks crackers into his soup. It is a bitter experience for a proud, high-spirited man to invest heavily in an engagement ring and then have it fired back seven or eight times by parcel post before he finds a soul-mate who doesn't object to sideburns.

The engagement rings is a source of great envy to adult friends of the bride-elect who have never been proposed to with any particular degree of enthusiasm, and who recall seeing the ring in a department store window last Christmas, marked down to $14.98.

UNCLE WALT The Post Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams

BY WALT MASON

Every spring he says, says he: "No more wrestling game in mine! Henceforth all my time shall be given to the pumpkin vine; I shall grow the state squash, cultivate the cabbage head; and when evening comes I'll wash feet and hands and go to bed." Then when winter comes along, and the wrestling game is on, all the beefy men and strong all the prodigies of brawn tell how deftly they could break all the vertebræ of Gotch; they could show he is a fake in three minutes by the watch. Then the farmer waxes sore, and he sternly says, says he: "I'll go wrestling just once more and make all these fakers see!" So he throws the sweating Swedes and he mauls the peevish Poles; and the daintiest Danes he kneads till their fame is full of holes. But the pitcher and the jug to the well too often go; and the wrestler and the pug each his Waterloo will know, if he hasn't sense to quit when he has a proper show; and some husky yet will sit on Frank Gotch's head and crow. Then with Jeffries and John L. he will wring his hands and weep, where the weird whang-doodles yell, and the snarks their vigil keep.

HAIR STOPS FALLING, DANDRUFF DISAPPEARS—25 CENT "DANDERINE"

Save your Hair! Beautify it! Invigorate your scalp! Danderine grows heavy, luxuriant hair and we can prove it.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or a loose or falling hair, and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine now will immediately double the beauty of your hair, no difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance, an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Kuo-Kwon's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove to yourself tonight now that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

This is Most Quiet of All Starting Devices

Rambler Motor Cars

Have you seen the Cross Country with the U. S. L. starting and lighting system?

It's the simplest, quietest and most effective device yet designed for the purpose.

It saves weight, bearings, chains, gears, complicated wiring, and operates silently.

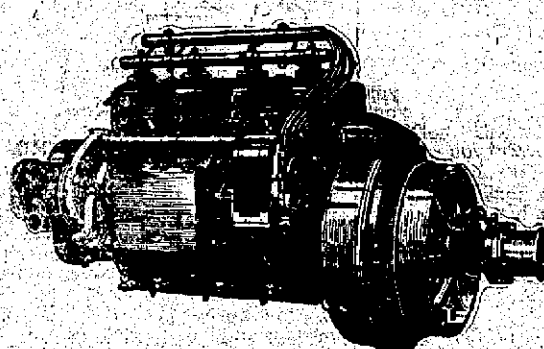

The usual cast-iron fly-wheel of the ordinary engine is left off. Parts forming the electric motor generator take the place of the fly-wheel.

The only wearing parts, other than those of all gasoline engines, are the motor generator brushes, which are made much larger than necessary—ample for mileage of three seasons of ordinary use.

You start the Cross Country motor with just a single operation. Press a button—that's all.

Press another—the lamps are lighted.

Have you seen the new Cross Country at $187.5?

The Cross Country engine combined with U. S. L. motor generator. Electrical parts enclosed and protected.

The old adage "Losers weepers, finders keepers," does not apply to the people of Janesville.

On the contrary, the first impulse of finders of lost articles is to turn to the Want Ad page of The Gazette and read the "Lost and Found" classification.

The Theatre

"BROADWAY JONES."

While theatergoers in New York are raving over George M. Cohan's latest success, "Broadway Jones," the play will be seen at the Myers Theatre Friday evening, April 4.

Never has a play come to us so highly endorsed by the critics. The praise of the press was universal. When "Broadway Jones" was presented in New York, the Tribune said: "Some people can live on Broadway all their lives, and never know what the place really is, until they go and see 'Broadway Jones'."

In the play "Broadway Jones" has squandered a fortune in an endeavor to burn up Broadway. Just as he thinks he has it properly incinerated elements of the production with just enough of the comedy element to make it fascinating and exhilarating. "I do not wonder that the play had a year's run in the city of New York. It ought to hold the boards in Chicago for that length of time. Bought and Paid For" should be seen by every true lover of the drama. They will be amply repaid, if they visit the play.

"Bought and Paid For" is being presented by the same admirable company, the members of which, in addition to the Chicago engagement, played in New York for 176 of its 478 performances there, last season. The combination of Frank Mills, Francis X. Conlan, Kathleen Mc-

there comes the inevitable smash, and his money is all gone. Not only this, but he finds himself heavily in debt. In despair he consents to marry an heiress old enough to be his mother, but before that event can take place an obliging uncle dies and leaves him a chewing gum factory in Jonesville, Connecticut. To further increase his good fortune the Chewing Gum Trust offers to buy out his Chewing Gum Factory for a fabulous sum. The girl in the play dawns on the scene at this time, and through her influence he is induced to change his mind, and instead of selling out, he goes to Jonesville, his native city, and becomes an active head of his new possession. This is a nutshell, is the story around which Mr. Cohan has written one of his best plays. New York has seen in years.

The cast presenting the play here includes John Webster, Ralph Morgan, Caroline Lill, George C. Staley, Daniel Burns, Jack Pierce, Marie Taylor, Fred Maynard, Grace Morrissey, Edith Lucke, George K. Henry, Charles H. Henderson, Dore Rodgers and others.

"BOUGHT AND PAID FOR"

"Bought and Paid For" which comes here on Tuesday evening, April 2, at Myers Theatre direct from the Princess Theatre, William A. Brady's Chicago playhouse, was the most popular play in Chicago. Many clergymen gave spontaneous endorsement of its honest moral tone and its power to teach and to amuse at the same time. Rabbi Tobias Schanfarber of the K. A. M. Temple, one of the greatest Jewish churches in Chicago, followed the lead of Dr. Arthur J. Francis, Minister of the Pilgrimage Cong. church, with an unsolicited letter of praise. Rabbi Schanfarber writes to the management of "Bought and Paid For" as follows:

"I want to tell you how much I enjoyed 'Bought and Paid For.' It is a most powerful play, and in the hands of a company that brings out all the elements of strength that there are in it.

It presents a phase of married life which is often met with, and which is the cause of much of the unhappiness with which many of our American homes are cursed. The author of the play has blended the more sober

Donell and Helen Lackaye could not be surprised in the interpretation of the striking characters which George Broadhurst has portrayed in this fine play.

ILLITERACY IS HIGH IN RURAL DISTRICTS

Lack of Educational Opportunity Responsible for Situation According to Bulletin.

Not immigration, but the lack of educational opportunities in rural districts, is chiefly responsible for the relatively high rate of illiteracy in the United States, according to a bulletin by A. C. Monahan of the Bureau of Education. The rate of rural illiteracy is twice the urban rate, despite the fact that approximately three-fourths of the immigrants are in the cities. Still more significant is a comparison between children born in this country of foreign parents with those born of native parents. "The illiteracy among native-born children of native parents is, more than three times as great as among native children of foreign parents," says Mr. Monahan, "largely on account of the lack of opportunities for education in rural America."

The bulletin is of special value at this time because it is a brief, clear, non-sensational statement of the rural school problem. It does not attempt to gloss over unpleasant facts. It gives full recognition to the positive advances that have been made in many rural districts and to improvements now under way, but in general finds conditions far from satisfactory.

Among other things, Mr. Monahan finds 226,000 one-teacher schoolhouses in the United States, of which 5,000 are log buildings still in active use. Although more than 60 percent of the children in the United States are enrolled in country schools, the rural aggregate attendance is only 51 percent. The school buildings and grounds in most country districts are in a condition that is only approached by "homes of the most shiftless residents of the district," and the average teaching in these one-teacher schools is of very low grade.

The bulletin is illustrated with photographs of good and bad rural schools from the log schoolhouse to the consolidated school, right and wrong heating in a country, a canning factory and school garden connected with a Louisiana school; and a map showing the system of local school supervision as it prevails in the several states. The purpose of the map is to show how real the need is for the kind of business-like supervision of the country schools that has led to such efficient results in the city.

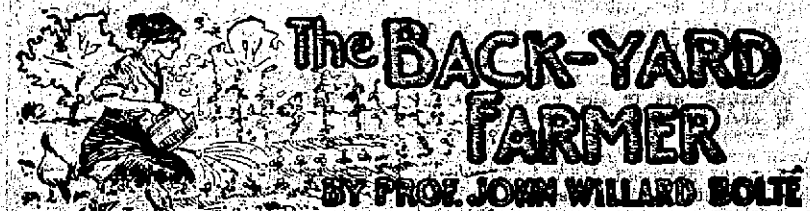

With the help of recent appropriation made by Congress the Bureau of Education has undertaken to make a careful study of the needs of the rural schools, and the bulletin just issued is one of the first definite results of the work. "It is in no way either complete or exhaustive," says Commissioner Claxton, "but it is the best possible under the circumstances and with the facilities now at our disposal. Incomplete as it is, this bulletin makes a very valuable contribution to a clear understanding of the rural schools as they actually are. The publication will be sent free upon application to the Commissioner of Education."

Wanted a New Sensation.

"Dropped a little at roulette while I was abroad," remarked the ice man. "Can't beat that game," said the coal man. "Wasn't trying to. I just wanted to see how it feels to lose money."

German Use of Potatoes.

Potatoes are dried in slices, chips and flakes in Germany for feeding to cattle, swine and sheep and hundreds of thousands of tons are consumed in that way.

Starting With Chickens.

Thousands of new flocks of chickens will be started off this spring with great enthusiasm and still greater expectations. It happens so every year. The fifty or sixty odd poultry papers, the hundred odd agricultural and horticultural journals, the several hundred poultry shows given each year by as many local poultry associations, the thousands upon thousands of established breeders of pure fowls, the agricultural colleges and experiment stations—all of these agencies are doing a mighty work in their efforts to interest all of us in poultry keeping.

Small flocks of chickens can always be handled profitably by observing a few very simple rules. It is only with great big flocks that the odds are against us. In starting out at this time of the year, one can either buy eggs and hatch them; or day-old chicks can be purchased and raised; either with hens or small brooders. For a person entirely unfamiliar with poultry, the ideal scheme is to go to some poultry raiser and buy from him a hen with her chickens already hatched.

Take them home and place the hen in a good coop that will confine her in a dry, shady place and will permit the chicks to run out and in at will. Be sure the ground under the coop is dry and clean. Move the coop frequently.

Dust the hen thoroughly with Persian insect powder as soon as you get her home and repeat in a week's time to kill vermin on her and her chicks. Feed the hen a handful of cracked corn and wheat twice a day. Start young chicks on barely moistened bread crumbs three times a day, and a prepared chick food twice a day. Get this food from any seed or poultry supply house. Feed only what they will clean up quickly. Succulent green food should be furnished frequently.

If the chicks have a large range you need not bother about grit, charcoal or meat food, but these articles must be supplied if chicks cannot pick up gravel and insects.

After chicks begin to feather, keep cracked dry bone before them; feed two feeds of a mixture of cracked corn two parts, wheat one part, hulled oats one part, and one feed of very stiff prepared wet mash every day. The mash can be secured ready mixed and it must not be fed too wet. Feed a little meat three times a week. Clean water must be supplied at all times. A good water fountain is a tin can inverted in a dish. A hole near the edge of the can lets the water out, when the level of the water in the dish is lowered enough to allow air to enter the can through the hole.

PARTNERS IN MORGAN FIRM WILL CARRY ON THE WORK OF THE DEAD MONEY KING

J. P. Morgan, Jr., son of the late J. P. Morgan, America's leading financier, will be assisted in his work as head of the house of Morgan by the aides upon whom his father most depended, Harry P. Davison and Thomas W. Lamont of

New York, and E. T. Statesbury of Philadelphia. They are reckoned among the most capable financiers in the country. Other Morgan partners are William H. Porter, Charles Steele, Temple Bowdoin, William P. Hamilton, Arthur E. Newbold and Horatio G. Lloyd.

Fads and Fashions

New York, April 3.—The prevailing style of afternoon gowns, with its infinite variety of materials and combinations, enables designers to give full sway to their taste and ingenuity. Charmeuse and serge, charmeuse, brocade and chiffon; taffeta, crepe and embroidered chiffon are combined on the same gown. The tight-fitting lower skirt may be of shepherd's plaid serge with a draped top of black charmeuse, or a crepe foundation may have an overdress of printed silk, and sleeves of chiffon or charmeuse in an entirely different color.

Premet taffeta, a soft, changeable silk printed in tiny flowers, has superseded the toulard, which has been the popular spring material for many seasons past. The printed and embroidered chiffons are excellent choices. The designs are large and the colorings bright. Cabbage roses are outlined in black and are seen on tan or old blue marquisette, chiffon and silk crepe. Crepe de Chine and crepons are printed, and many of them show a rough finish. Callot has introduced a plaid chiffon in pastel tones. An iridescent moire taffeta plays a conspicuous part in the materials for the afternoon models.

Bodices are transparent in many instances. All white, blouse-like bodices with good style and their effect is youthful. Frequently waist and sleeve are one. The kimono sleeve and dropped shoulder seam is still much used, also, the bishop sleeve shirred in tightly at the wrist with frills of lace or tulle at the hand.

Balkan buttons are a novelty. They are large and jeweled to match the costume. Collars resembling the Elizabethan ruff are now. They are high at the back and roll into revers in the front. All of the afternoon or theatre gowns have a semi-decorative, rather ornate, V-shaped. New trains are shown in this informal frock. Almost without exception these models are slashed and an illusion petticoat may be worn.

Sashes are an interesting feature. They are applied in every manner, draped on the waist line or about the hips. They hang from the shoulder, cross in the back and fall in a knot over the left hip. The treatment of the sash ranges from the severest bands to the softest folds, and it may be a mere piping encircling the waist, or of the most elaborate.

Evening gowns this spring, though lighter in tone and less barbaric in character than formerly, are just as elaborate as ever. The simple little gown is no more, except for the dance frock. Colors are varied in one fabric and several fabrics, differing in color and design and combined in one garment; lace of every conceivable kind and material is used as trimming. Brocade is still in high favor, all the well-known materials and new ones being made in brocade designs. Chiffon, crepe, moire, flowered chiffon, satin and plain chiffon are the materials most used.

Colors are varied and rather bold. Apricot, geranium, American Beauty and paprika are taking the place of the deeper reds. There are many of the metallic hues, like absinth, which is at present very smart; sulphur, beige, brass, gold and an unattractive shade of mustard color. The greens are very vivid and the blues very soft and almost dull in tone. This is essentially a color period, although black and black and white is always a safe choice. Sometimes a touch of black or very dark green appears as a contrasting note to give character to a gown of color.

Laces of soft texture, also those of gold and silver thread, nets, beaded, embroidered and bulged, artificial flowers, festoons of French ribbon and chiffon rosettes, crystal banding and velvet ribbons are the accepted materials for trimming.

Drapery is a feature of all the gowns and is very beautiful, that following the diagonal lines being most used. Trains of different shapes and lengths are still a part of the conventional dinner gown. The new gown is cut square, although there are also many pointed trains. Dunay has invented an ingenious way of hooking up the train when dancing, so that it seems naturally draped in a cascade effect, as a part of the gown. The old method of having a loop on the end of the train, which must be held on the finger, is both ugly and troublesome.

Once upon a time the sleeve ruled the world of fashion; today it is ignored. The sleeveless gown or wrap is spoken of, which means that if a piece of lace or drapery somewhere in the vicinity of the shoulder should resemble a sleeve it is accepted as such, but trouble is not even taken to make the two sleeves of the same gown alike. Often enough one arm boasts of a sleeve, while the other has none.

Scarves with ends banded with wide printed borders in Bulgarian colors and design give an interesting touch of color to the light or white evening frock. One of a deep golden yellow shows a design in blocked squares, crescents, circles and dots in clear green, red, blue, black and white. A black scarf shows a similar design printed in blue, red and white. Rich red and a light and vivid shade of green form the foundation colors for other scarves which are bordered with contrasting bright designs.

Sashes in red, green, black, white and yellow, combined in stripes, are made of wide silk ribbon with a central wide stripe of velvet. These sashes are finished with black silk tassels four or five inches long. They would supply character and style to white frocks of crepe or tulle.

A popular use for the rich Bulgarian silks and ribbons, which are so plentiful this spring, is in trimming hats. Many dark straw hats have silk-covered crowns. Shaded feelings of silk or ribbon are also used. Flat, wide bows of figured silk trim wide shade hats and pert, upright wired bows are used on small hats. Ribbon streamers are used on a few big hats.

The oddest and most striking of the artificial flowers used on spring hats show a rim about the edge of each petal and a center of strongly contrasting color. The colors of these flowers, most of them roses, were never seen in flowers which grew on bushes. There are vivid green roses with salmon rim and center, lilac roses with lemon edge and rich blue

Forecasting the Weather

A Short Story of a Weather Map.

If you have never studied the weather maps, but have merely glanced at them, occasionally, thinking them to be only picture puzzles in which the lines are hopeless tangles and the figures and symbols represent nothing in particular, it will be interesting at this time to analyze a map and consider its prominent features.

At the end of this chapter is a map, selected because of its near approach to a theoretically ideal type that would well illustrate the general laws applicable to our atmospheric disturbances.

The isobars, or lines of equal barometer readings, form the most prominent feature of the map, as they locate the great centers of action. They are drawn for each tenth of an inch of variation. For example, the line marked "30.0" at each end, passes through points where the barometer readings are just 30 inches. On one side of this line, the readings are higher than 30 inches, and lines are drawn for each tenth of an inch increase until a center or crest is located and marked "High." On the other side lines are drawn for each tenth of an inch decrease until the center of the depression is located and marked "Low."

The real significance of barometer readings will be more fully explained in a chapter of "Atmospheric Pressure," but for the present it will be sufficient to note that the isobars outline great atmospheric whirls or eddies.

Bearing in mind that the arrows are inscribed to fly with the wind, a careful inspection of the area having "Low" at the center will reveal the fact that the winds blow in toward the center, not directly, but spirally, just as water in passing down through a funnel flows around the center and approaches it gradually. You will further observe that the winds rotate about the center in a direction against the hands of a watch, face upward. Some places will be noted where the winds do not conform to the above rules; being temporarily deflected by local conditions. The more intense and energetic the disturbance becomes the more nearly will the wind movements conform to the general laws, as the forces in the great atmospheric eddy become strong enough to overcome local influences.

Now, if you will examine the area marked "High" at the center you will observe that the winds move in, in opposite directions, from those in the "Low." In other words, they blow spirally outward from the center. Also it will be noticed that the air currents flow in a compound curve from the center of the "High" toward the center of the "Low." The straight line, which is indicated by the arrows, blow in toward the center of the "Low" from all directions, it becomes apparent at once that the air rises in the central area. Conversely, it is equally evident that the air is constantly settling down in the central area of the "High." The fact that the surface air currents flow from the center of the "High" toward the center of the "Low" suggests the idea that, at some distance above the earth the rising air in the "Low" must flow toward the "High," and such indeed is the case.

It must not be imagined, however, that the interchange of air as noted above constitutes a "complete circulation of these areas, for if we were to map a larger territory we would discover adjacent disturbances with which the same relations are maintained.

The temperature conditions attending this atmospheric circulation are very interesting. Note that the freezing line (drawn through points having a temperature of 32 degrees F.) begins in the extreme northeast, in central New Brunswick, and extends nearly due westward to a point near the center of the "Low," and thence it sweeps southward nearly to the Texas coast, then northward in to southern California, whence it bears northward, nearly parallel to the Pacific coast line. A study of the wind directions with relation to this line will suggest the reasons for its trend.

The weather conditions in these large atmospheric whirls are as marked as are the temperature conditions. Observe the prevailing cloudiness in the low-pressure areas, bearing in mind that it is cloudy at the places marked with an "R," or an "S," the same as where the circles on the map are blackened. By way of contrast notice the clear skies over the greater portion of the high-pressure areas.

Areas of high and low barometric pressure are constantly and successively shifting across the country from the west and toward the east, and with the foregoing explanations the reader can readily understand the causes of our weather changes.

It becomes evident that while an area of low barometric pressure is drifting over a given locality, the weather will ordinarily be cloudy, with a tendency to rain or snow, depending on the season of the year. The temperature will at first be relatively high, followed by a colder weather, when the center of the area has passed and the wind shifts to a westerly or northwesterly direction. As the area of low pressure passes eastward and is succeeded by an area of high pressure, the temperature will continue to fall for a time, and the skies will clear.

A rapid succession of high and low pressure areas implies frequent changes in weather and temperature conditions, while conversely a sluggishness in the movements of these areas tends toward a prolongation of given types of weather.

As a Last Remark.

"Should a girl propose to a basketful of suitors?" "Not until she has tried everything else. Ask him if he is going to invite you to his wedding. That usually starts something."

American Fence is made of large stiff wires, galvanized heavily, having the American hinged joint (patented), a fabric most flexible and wear-resisting. A square mesh fence of weight, strength and durability—three great needs in farm fences.

The design of American Fence is admitted to be right and truly is the favorite of every farmer in the world. Get the original and genuine that our many years of experience has developed and perfected. Don't get an imitation!

"Yes, sir. I told the boys yet honor wouldn't thank us for the catchin' of her. She's a lady and a purty one."

"Well, tell Major Williams for me to let her take the oath and everything else she wants, with the United States government's apology and an order for a new bonnet."

"The young lady to take the oath, is it?"

"An' she's after saying she'll see us a—d first."

"Did she say that?"

"Well, she didn't use them exact words, but she looked at me to that effect. Oh, she's a spunkier, son. She was ridin' like a wildcat through the woods on a gray horse, and we had the devil's own chase before we caught her wild her by the bend in Oak run. And at the same time we saw the gray back of a Confederate officer skeddaddling off on the other side of the creek."

"H'm. Have you found any dispatches on the prisoner?"

"Colonel West, I'm a bachelor, an' I don't be after pretendin' to any familiarity with the jargon of a woman's clothes. What could we boys do, yer honor?"

"Sure enough. Tell them to send the prisoner here, Barker, and then you hurry back to your post at Buckton's ford and stay there until you get news of Bedloe."

"The Irish trooper departed, and the fair prisoner was brought in by a corporal and two soldiers."

"Dressed in a dark green riding habit and hat with sweeping plume, after the approved antebellum fashion of the fox hunting Dianas of that section of Virginia, she looked indeed a dashing type of self-reliant womanhood. Kerchival could not see her face because, ere he had time to look up from his map, she had proudly turned her back to him."

"Will you be seated, madam?" said the young colonel, who had risen from the bench and now stood by rather bashfully, wondering how he should proceed.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Colonel and the Lady.

THE lady drew herself up disdainfully, folded her arms and remained silent. Kerchival shrugged his shoulders and made a new start.

"I am very sorry, madam, but circumstances are such that I can take but one course consistently with my duty. You have been captured within the lines of this army, and there is reason to believe that you are the bearer of important dispatches. If so, I must ask you to give them up. I trust that you will give me whatever you have at once. It would be of no advantage to you and extremely awkward for me if you were to compel me to adopt the extreme—the very disagreeable—course for both of us of having you—well, I hesitate to use the word as a seeming threat, madam, but the military law compels that you shall be—"

"Searched? Is that what you mean? If you dare, Colonel West!"

Here the prisoner turned upon him quickly enough, disclosing a flushed face and flashing eyes, framed in rebellious hair of warm, bronze color. One look at this splendid spirited picture and Kerchival West sprang forward with arms extended, exclaiming:

"Gertrude, my dear Gertrude! Is it possible?"

"Not dear Gertrude to you—my jailer!" she retorted, drawing back.

"So this was their meeting! 'Enemies' still, and drawn up in line of battle."

"Pardon me, Miss Ellingham," said Kerchival humbly. "I feel that I am your prisoner now."

"We must both face the painful realities of war," she answered coldly.

"Believe me, Gertrude, my position is more—more regrettable than yours."

"Do not forget your paramount duty as a military officer on my account," she pursued tauntingly.

"Will you please hand me whatever dispatches or other papers may be in your possession?"

"And if I don't choose to? You can threaten me with force, I suppose. I am only a woman, going about my business—my military duty. If you please—in defense of my home. I—I do not know, Colonel West—here her voice faltered a little, but she recovered herself instantly—"that you were coming in this threatening attitude. Well, I am in your power. Order in the guard! Call up your whole regiment! Beat the long roll and then see if I give up!"

"Hello! What's all this?" demanded a gruff voice as the imposing form of General Buckthorn loomed up behind them. "Is this your prisoner, Colonel West?"

"Yes, general," stammered Kerchival, who nevertheless felt relieved at the sight of his senior commander.

"Jenny's father?" gasped Gertrude.

"I wonder if he will recognize me?"

"Pine young woman, eh?" said the old general in a hoarse whisper, at the same time giving Kerchival a sidelong glance to the ribs. Then he turned and bowed gravely, removing his hat but not suddenly resuming his air of military sternness, held out his hand to Kerchival and demanded, "Let us see the dispatches."

"She refuses to give them up," answered the young officer.

"Oh, she does, does she? My dear young lady, kindly let us have those dispatches without any further palaver."

"What! You defy my authority?"

"I have no dispatches," replied Gertrude slyly, "and I would not give them to you if I had."

"What! You defy my authority?"

"General Buckthorn, I cannot obey that order."

"You—your refusal to obey my order?"

"That is the woman I love, sir," whispered Kerchival aside to the general.

"Oh! Why didn't you say so? I'll have to take matters in my own hands then."

"Don't do that, General Buckthorn!" said the young officer, facing him with determination.

"Blast your eyes, sir! I'd cut martial law if you did let me search her. But duty is duty. Consider yourself sworn to, sir. Young woman, Colonel West here has sacrificed his life to protect you."

"His life?" cried Gertrude.

"I must have him shot for insubordination in front of the enemy," continued the general, giving Kerchival a huge wink.

"Oh, sir! General Buckthorn! I have told the truth. I have no dispatches. I haven't a scrap of paper about me, except—"

"Ah, except. Except what?"

"Only this letter," taking it from the bosom of her riding habit. "Here it is. Upon my honor, it is all I have—truly, it is."

General Buckthorn took the letter and glanced it over quickly.

"Washington—ho, boy! I see—Colonel Kerchival West."

"Don't read it aloud, general, please," interrupted Gertrude.

"Very well, I won't." He read on, aside, mumbling to himself—"had

"H'm—my dear Gertrude. Are you my dear Gertrude, Miss Gertrude Ellingham?"

"Yes, general."

"Thunder and Mars! Then this is your house, and my daughter Jenny is your guest?"

"Why, of course! Jenny is here all right."

"Well, of all the dangerous little rebels!" Here the general chuckled her under the chin before turning to Kerchival to say: "Colonel West, I leave this suspicious young person in your charge. If she attempts to escape or is unruly in any way read this letter. Here, take it—but not till then."

"Oh, let me have it back. It's mine," pleaded Gertrude.

"I shall obey orders," said Kerchival, putting the letter into his pocket.

Meanwhile a disturbance down the road had attracted the attention of the group. They now saw that it was caused by the approach of a squad of men bringing along a prisoner in disarranged Confederate uniform and who evidently had not been captured without putting up a desperate resistance.

"It's Thornton," by—was Kerchival's astounded exclamation.

"Then the little witch has been communicating with the enemy, after all," said General Buckthorn.

"I don't deny that," replied Gertrude calmly. "They are not my enemy. But I wish to say that when I went across the lines I did not know that the Confederate officer I was to meet would be Captain Thornton."

"Miss Ellingham," said Kerchival, "if you will give me your parole of honor until next we meet you may be excused now."

"You have my word. I am your prisoner," she replied, turning to cast one scornful glance upon the growling Thornton as she entered the house.

"Now we shall probably find the dispatches we have been looking for, general," said Kerchival.

Two of the guard held Thornton's arms, none too gently, while the cor-

It was Nellie's first visit to the museum, and her mother was anxious to explain all things properly. Room after room they passed through, till at length they stood before a knight in shining armor.

"And this," Nellie said to her mother, "is a suit of armor, which used to be worn by the knights of old. What do you think of it dear?"

For a few brief seconds Nellie regarded it thoughtfully, then shook her head.

"Praps it was all right," she said doubtfully. "But don't you think, mother, it must have scratched the furniture awfully?"

"Come here, Maria," called Mr. Smith from the front window. "There goes that woman George Brown is spending all his money on."

"Where?" shouted Mrs. Smith, as she made for the window. "Why, that's George Brown's wife."

"Well, I know it is."

"And you're a mean wretch, so there," said Mrs. Smith. And she went back to her own room.

The Voice a Pearl.

Elihu Burritt says of the voice: "Watch it day by day as a pearl of great price, for it will be worth more to you in the days to come than the best pearl hid in the sea. A kind voice in joy, like a lark's song, to a hearth at home. Train it to sweet tones now and it will keep in tune through life."
